SAP Certified - Database Administrator - SAP HANA Sample Questions (Q31-Q36):

NEW QUESTION # 31

A marine logistics company completes routine morning administration on an on-premises SAP HANA environment while dependent analytics continue in SAP HANA Cloud. The instance is reachable, core services respond, and no broad outage is visible. However, one administrator cannot complete a required operational action on a database that other team members can review successfully. The failed action appears only in one support role during a narrowed maintenance step. A colleague proposes repeating the action through a broader administrative account so the schedule is not delayed. The operations supervisor wants the issue resolved in a way that restores correct execution scope rather than bypassing it.

What is the best next action?

- A. Execute the task through a broader administrative account because completing the operation on time is the main objective.
- B. Restart the database because role-specific execution failure usually indicates a short-lived runtime inconsistency.
- C. Delay the action until the next maintenance cycle because other administrators can still review the database successfully.
- D. Validate whether the affected support role still has the required execution scope for that operational action and correct that scope before retrying.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Feedback:

This is the second-order cause drill in this batch. The symptom is one failed operational action, but the evidence shows the database is reachable and other team members can review it. That means the failure is likely not at the platform layer. The upstream dependency is execution scope for the affected support role. Validating and correcting that scope restores proper administration behavior without masking the root cause.

NEW QUESTION # 32

A subscription billing company uses SAP HANA for scheduled revenue analysis. Users report that one recurring analysis job finishes later than expected, but interactive checks remain responsive. SAP HANA cockpit shows no database outage, while monitoring history shows that the late job overlaps with a planned administrative task and a short period of increased CPU utilization. The support team suggests changing the job owner because the job still completes successfully.

The constraint is that the administrator must identify whether the delay is caused by workload timing or an execution access problem before making a change. The next scheduled run must remain within the reporting window.

Which response best addresses the delayed execution?

- A. Change the job owner immediately because delayed completion indicates an authorization problem.
- B. Review the job timing against the administrative task and CPU history, then adjust scheduling or workload placement if the overlap is confirmed.
- C. Restart the database before the next run so background execution begins from a clean runtime state.
- D. Accept the current schedule because successful completion proves that the reporting window is protected.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Feedback:

This acts at the scheduling and resource diagnosis layer indicated by the monitoring history. Confirming the overlap and adjusting timing or placement addresses the cause of delayed execution while preserving the reporting window requirement.

NEW QUESTION # 33

A public-sector research organization is rehearsing migration from an SAP HANA on-premises database to SAP HANA Cloud. The migration tool can connect to the source database, and the cloud target is available. During the rehearsal, the extraction step starts but stops when it attempts to read required administration-level metadata. The project coordinator suggests using a broader technical user immediately so the migration timeline is not delayed.

The constraint is that the administrator must keep the migration controlled while ensuring the migration identity has the required scope for extraction and validation. The organization wants the first cloud migration wave to be repeatable for later databases.

What is the best next action?

- A. Export only the application data first and defer metadata validation until after the SAP HANA Cloud target is populated.
- B. Switch to an unrestricted technical identity so the extraction can complete without further authorization review.
- C. Continue the rehearsal with the current identity because source connectivity confirms enough access for migration execution.
- D. Adjust the migration identity to include the required administration-level access, document the scope, and rerun the rehearsal validation.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Feedback:

This corrects the access-scope dependency at the appropriate layer before rerunning execution. Documenting and validating the required administration-level access supports a repeatable migration pattern for later SAP HANA Cloud waves.

NEW QUESTION # 34

A digital publishing company operates SAP HANA for subscriber activity reporting. Users report that dashboards are available, but refresh times vary sharply during the morning reporting window. SAP HANA cockpit shows no service outage, while monitoring history shows a recurring peak in expensive statement activity from a reporting workload. The database team is asked to increase system capacity immediately because the reports are business-critical.

The constraint is that the administrator must identify the execution pattern before recommending a capacity or scheduling change.

The business requires stable refresh times, but the system must remain available during investigation.

Which action best fits the observed performance evidence?

- A. Review the expensive statement pattern and workload timing, then apply a targeted scheduling or workload adjustment based on validated evidence.
- B. Restart SAP HANA during the reporting window so existing expensive statements are cleared before users refresh dashboards.
- C. Disable the reporting workload until the next maintenance window so all expensive statements are removed from the system.
- D. Increase capacity immediately because dashboard variability always indicates insufficient database resources.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Feedback:

This acts on the monitored execution evidence before changing the operating model. Reviewing expensive statement behavior and timing supports a targeted correction that links workload activity, resource use, and dashboard refresh validation.

NEW QUESTION # 35

A regional rail services company uses SAP HANA for maintenance planning analytics. The administrator reviews recovery readiness after a backup configuration update. SAP HANA cockpit shows a recent successful data backup, and log backups are being created. During validation, the recovery checklist shows that the log backup location recorded for restore operations differs from the active log backup destination now used by the system. The operations team suggests approving readiness because both data and log backups exist.

The constraint is that the administrator must prove that restore procedures reference the active backup locations before accepting recovery readiness. The team must avoid a situation where backups exist but the documented recovery path cannot retrieve them.

What should the administrator do next?

- A. Approve recovery readiness because the system has recent data and log backup artifacts.
- B. Create another data backup and use its catalog entry as the primary recovery evidence.
- C. Update and validate the recovery checklist against the active log backup destination, then rerun restore-path validation.
- D. Disable log backup creation until the documented restore location and active destination match again.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Feedback:

This resolves the restore-path mismatch at the recovery procedure layer. Updating and validating the checklist against the active destination confirms that backup creation, location documentation, retrieval path, and restore validation are aligned.
