SAP Certified - Database Administrator - SAP HANA Sample Questions (Q84-Q89):

NEW QUESTION # 84

CHALLENGE 4 - Receipt-to-Invoice Continuity During Transition Weekend

The finance team proposes a quicker overlap approach: allow local exception handling during the transition weekend so invoices can be settled faster, even if the route differs slightly by plant. The transition office wants a result that remains supportable after go-live. Which action is best aligned with the scenario?

- A. Suspend invoice validation during the weekend and rely on post-go-live cleanup for any unsettled cases
- B. Retain the stricter receipt-to-invoice sequence and validate whether finance traceability remains intact under overlap-period conditions
- C. Accept local exception handling because transition weekends should prioritize speed over continuity
- D. Validate only goods receipt

Answer: B

Explanation:

Feedback:

The scenario places finance traceability and overlap-period stability at the center of go-live readiness. Retaining the stricter end-to-end sequence preserves the evidence needed to confirm that invoice handling remains supportable during transition.

NEW QUESTION # 85

CHALLENGE 4 - Service Continuity Recovery Gate

The service lead can accept hypercare readiness on schedule using backup completion evidence, or delay briefly to include recovery validation for the stabilization database and recoverability evidence for the upgraded system. Which path is most defensible?

- A. Accept on schedule and attach recovery validation to the future SAP HANA Cloud migration plan.
- B. Delay briefly to complete recoverability evidence for systems supporting the readiness package.
- C. Cancel the readiness decision because recovery validation was not completed before testing began.
- D. Accept on schedule because meeting the service review date is the strongest governance outcome.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Feedback:

A brief delay is most defensible because it completes recoverability evidence for systems supporting the readiness package. This balances schedule governance with operational resilience evidence.

NEW QUESTION # 86

A regional nonprofit services provider uses SAP HANA for daily service utilization reporting. SAP HANA cockpit shows that a memory-related alert rule is triggered during the early reporting window, but the operations mailbox does not receive the expected notification. The database remains available, and dashboard users do not report failures. During review, the administrator notices that the alert appears in the monitoring view, but the notification assignment used by the operations team was not confirmed after a recent administration cleanup.

The constraint is that the administrator must restore reliable alert handling before the next reporting window. The team needs proof that monitoring detection and notification delivery are both working, not only that the alert is visible in cockpit.

Which action best addresses the alert handling gap?

- A. Close the alert because SAP HANA cockpit already displays it and the database remains available for reporting users.
- B. Restart the database so alert rules and notification assignments are reloaded during the next startup cycle.
- C. Verify the notification assignment for the triggered alert, correct the missing assignment, and validate that a new alert event reaches operations.
- D. Increase the alert threshold so the memory-related event occurs less often during the reporting window.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Feedback:

This acts at the alert routing layer where detection and notification must be connected. Correcting the assignment and validating delivery confirms that monitoring recognition, notification binding, execution, and operational evidence are aligned.

NEW QUESTION # 87

A renewable energy company is preparing a phased move from SAP HANA on-premises to SAP HANA Cloud. The first rehearsal transfers a small administrative dataset successfully, and SAP HANA Cloud Central shows the target database as running. During post-migration review, database explorer checks on the target fail because the validation connection still uses the source system entry from the rehearsal workstation. The migration lead wants to approve the phase because the cloud target is active.

The constraint is that the administrator must validate the migrated target without confusing source connectivity with cloud validation. The phased migration should remain repeatable for later datasets.

Which action should the administrator take?

- A. Keep using the source connection and compare row counts because the source system remains the trusted baseline during rehearsal.
- B. Repeat the data transfer from the source system because a failed validation connection proves that the migration content did not move.
- C. Correct the database explorer connection to the SAP HANA Cloud target, validate the migrated dataset there, and record the reusable validation step.
- D. Approve the migration phase because SAP HANA Cloud Central confirms that the target database is running.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Feedback:

This corrects the validation binding before accepting the migration phase. Pointing database explorer to the cloud target and recording the step confirms that target availability, migrated content validation, and repeatable migration evidence are aligned.

NEW QUESTION # 88

A regional sports merchandise company runs SAP HANA for order trend analytics. SAP HANA cockpit shows the database as available, but the operations team notices that one monitoring view reports normal CPU behavior while another workload history view shows a short spike during the same reporting interval. Users report that dashboards were slow only during that interval. A support analyst proposes increasing capacity because the workload history view shows a peak.

The constraint is that the administrator must reconcile conflicting monitoring evidence before recommending a configuration or capacity change. The next reporting cycle must remain available while the cause is validated.

Which action best fits the observed monitoring conflict?

- A. Compare the monitoring time windows and workload evidence, identify the source of the spike, and apply a targeted correction only after validation.
- B. Ignore the workload history because the current CPU monitoring view shows normal behavior.
- C. Increase capacity immediately because any workload spike proves that the database is under-provisioned.
- D. Restart SAP HANA before the next reporting cycle so both monitoring views begin from the same runtime state.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Feedback:

This resolves the evidence conflict at the monitoring interpretation layer. Aligning time windows and workload records supports a targeted correction that connects observed performance, resource behavior, and validation before the next cycle.
