NEW QUESTION # 191

A research team is investigating the mechanisms of antifungal resistance in Candida albicans. They identify a strain that exhibits resistance to azole antifungal agents. Further analysis reveals overexpression of a specific ATP-binding cassette (ABC) transporter protein in the resistant strain. This mechanism of resistance involves:

- A. Increased degradation of the azole antifungal agent within the fungal cell.
- B. Modification of the fungal cell wall, preventing azole penetration.
- C. Active efflux of the azole antifungal agent out of the fungal cell.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 192

A research laboratory is investigating the quorum sensing system in Pseudomonas aeruginosa. They identify a novel autoinducer molecule and a corresponding transcriptional regulator. Disruption of the gene encoding this regulator leads to a significant decrease in the production of virulence factors such as elastase and pyocyanin. Further analysis reveals that this regulator directly binds to the promoter regions of these virulence genes in the presence of the autoinducer. This regulatory mechanism is an example of:

- A. A direct transcriptional activation mechanism dependent on a small signaling molecule.
- B. A two-component regulatory system involving a sensor kinase and a response regulator.
- C. A post-transcriptional regulatory mechanism involving small regulatory RNAs.
- D. A global regulatory network controlled by alternative sigma factors.
