HPE Network Switching Associate Exam Sample Questions (Q68-Q73):

NEW QUESTION # 68

How many broadcast domains are shown in the diagram below?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: C

Explanation:

Each VLAN is a separate Layer 2 broadcast domain. The diagram shows VLAN 10 and VLAN 20, so there are two broadcast domains.

NEW QUESTION # 69

A CX 6200 VSF stack is the Layer 3 gateway for a mid-sized company. Users are divided into three different subnets on VLANs 100, 200, and 300. VLAN 50 contains a management network for access points, switches, and DHCP servers.

How do the access points get an IP address using DHCP?

- A. As a response to the multicast DHCP query.
- B. As a response to the broadcast DHCP query.
- C. As a response to the anycast DHCP query.
- D. As a response to the unicast DHCP query.

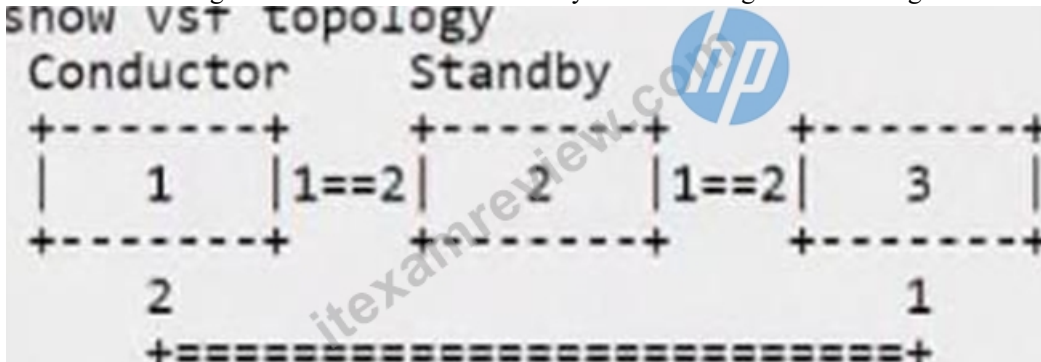

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct answer is D. As a response to the broadcast DHCP query. DHCP clients initially do not have an IP address, so they commonly use broadcast DHCP discovery/request traffic to locate a DHCP server on the local network. HPE Aruba Networking documentation for DHCP relay explains that when a DHCP client broadcasts a request, the DHCP relay agent on the switch receives the packets and forwards them to the DHCP server as unicast requests. In this scenario, the access points are in VLAN 50, and VLAN 50 also contains DHCP servers. Because the DHCP server is on the same local management VLAN as the APs, the APs can obtain addresses through the normal DHCP broadcast process within that VLAN. Anycast and multicast are not used for the basic DHCP address request in this scenario. A unicast DHCP relay message can occur between a relay agent and a DHCP server when the server is on another subnet, but the client-side DHCP discovery begins as broadcast traffic.

NEW QUESTION # 70

A customer has configured a CX 6200F VSF stack already in use. You are given the following information on the setup:

What steps are required to add a new member to the solution?

- A. The new member needs to be pre-provisioned as a standby.
- B. The VSF link 2 on member 1 must be reconfigured to support new members.
- C. A link between members 1 and 3 needs to be disconnected.
- D. The topology of the configuration needs to be set to chain.

Answer: A

Explanation:

To add a new member to an existing CX 6200F VSF stack, the new switch must be pre-provisioned as a standby member. This ensures it can correctly join the existing VSF topology and integrate into the stack without disrupting current operations.

NEW QUESTION # 71

A Network Operator is troubleshooting a new trunk link between two switches. Traffic for VLAN 10 is passing correctly, but traffic for VLAN 20 and VLAN 30 is not. The operator checks the configuration on Switch-A. Review the configuration on Switch-A's trunk port:

```
interface 1/1/48
no shutdown
vlan trunk native 10
vlan trunk allowed 10, 20
```

The configuration on Switch-B is identical.

Why is VLAN 30 traffic not passing over this trunk?

- A. The native VLAN is misconfigured and should be set to 1 (default).
- B. The 'vlan trunk allowed' list on both switches does not include VLAN 30.
- C. The port is administratively shut down.
- D. VLAN 30 has not been created in the switch's VLAN database.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 72

Suppose that a router has learned about network 172.18.37.0/24 from three sources ?OSPF, Internal BGP, and a static route. Which statement is true about this router's path selection?

- A. The router chooses the option with the highest administrative distance.
- B. The router chooses the OSPF route, because it is trusted more than BGP.
- C. The router chooses the static route.
- D. The router chooses the best path based on the lowest cost.

Answer: C
