NEW QUESTION # 239

Which of the following is NOT a valid deployment option for R80?

- A. Distributed
- B. Bridge Mode
- C. CloudGuard
- D. All-in-one (stand-alone)

Answer: C

Explanation:

CloudGuard is not a valid deployment option for R80. CloudGuard is a product name for Check Point's cloud security solutions, not a deployment mode. The valid deployment options for R80 are all-in-one (stand-alone), distributed, and bridge mode. In an all-in-one deployment, the Security Management Server and Security Gateway are installed on the same machine. In a distributed deployment, the Security Management Server and Security Gateway are installed on separate machines. In a bridge mode deployment, the Security Gateway acts as a transparent bridge between two network segments and does not have an IP address of its own. #### NEW QUESTION # 240

In _____ NAT, the _____ is translated.

- A. Simple; source
- B. Hide; source
- C. Hide; destination
- D. Static; source

Answer: B

Explanation:

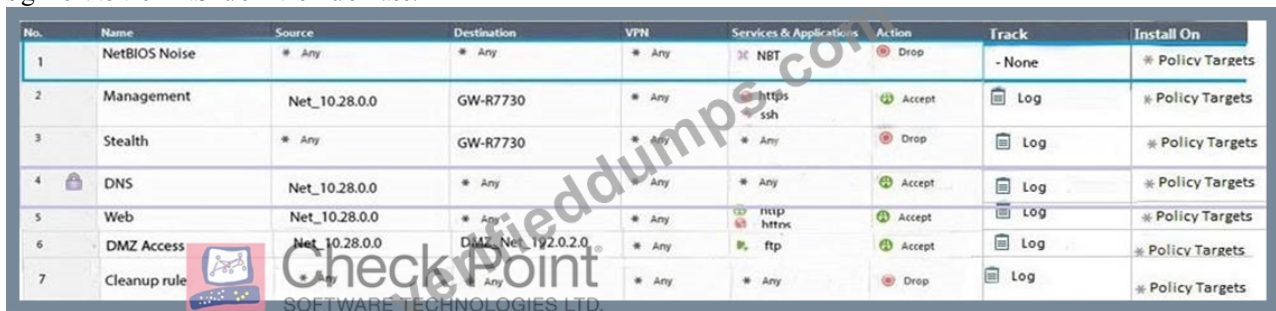

Explanation

In hide NAT, the source IP address is translated. Hide NAT is also known as many-to-one NAT or PAT (Port Address Translation). It maps multiple private IP addresses to one public IP address by using different port numbers. Hide NAT allows outbound connections from the private network to the public network, but not inbound connections from the public network to the private network. In static NAT, the source or destination IP address is translated depending on the direction of the traffic. Static NAT is also known as one-to-one NAT or bi-directional NAT. It maps one private IP address to one public IP address and allows both outbound and inbound connections. In simple NAT, there is no translation of IP addresses. Simple NAT is also known as routing mode or transparent mode. It allows traffic to pass through the NAT device without any modification. There is no hide NAT for destination IP address translation.
