Which of the following is NOT a valid deployment option for R80?

- A. All-in-one (stand-alone)
- B. Distributed
- C. CloudGuard
- D. Bridge Mode

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

CloudGuard is not a valid deployment option for R80. CloudGuard is a product name for Check Point's cloud security solutions, not a deployment mode. The valid deployment options for R80 are all-in-one (stand-alone), distributed, and bridge mode. In an all-in-one deployment, the Security Management Server and Security Gateway are installed on the same machine. In a distributed deployment, the Security Management Server and Security Gateway are installed on separate machines. In a bridge mode deployment, the Security Gateway acts as a transparent bridge between two network segments and does not have an IP address of its own. - B. No, only one can be connected
- C. Yes, every administrator has their own username, and works in a session that is independent of other administrators
- D. Yes, but only one has the right to write

Answer: C

Explanation:

Multiple administrators can connect to a Security Management Server at the same time, and each administrator has their own username and works in a session that is independent of other administrators.

This allows concurrent administration and prevents conflicts between different administrators. The other options are incorrect. Only one administrator can be connected is false. All administrators can modify a network object at the same time is false, as only one administrator can lock and edit an object at a time. Only one has the right to write is false, as all administrators have write permissions unless they are restricted by roles or permissions.
