CompTIA CloudNetX Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q25-Q30):

NEW QUESTION # 25
A network architect needs to build a new data center for a large company that has business units that process retail financial transactions. Which of the following information should the architect request from the company?

- A. Statement of work
- B. Internal reference architecture
- C. Business case study
- D. Regulatory requirements

Answer: D

Explanation:
Before designing a facility that will handle retail financial transactions, you need to understand all applicable compliance and security mandates (e.g. PCI DSS, SOX, GDPR). Those regulatory requirements will drive your choices around physical security, network segmentation, encryption, logging, redundancy, and operational controls, ensuring the data center meets its legal and industry-specific obligations.

NEW QUESTION # 26
A company is experiencing numerous network issues and decides to expand its support team. The new junior employees will need to be onboarded in the shortest time possible and be able to troubleshoot issues with minimal assistance. Which of the following should the company create to achieve this goal?

- A. Statement of work documenting what each junior employee should do when troubleshooting
- B. Physical and logical network diagrams of the entire networking infrastructure
- C. Clearly documented runbooks for networking issues and knowledge base articles
- D. A mentor program for guiding each junior employee until they are familiar with the networking infrastructure

Answer: C

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:
Runbooks and knowledge base articles provide step-by-step instructions for resolving common issues, helping new employees quickly become productive with minimal supervision. These documents can be updated as new issues arise and serve as a foundational training and operational resource.
Relevant Extract from CompTIA CloudNetX CNX-001 Study Guide - under "Operational Documentation and Knowledge Transfer":
"Runbooks contain standardized procedures for handling recurring operational tasks. Knowledge base articles enable consistent troubleshooting and resolution with minimal oversight." Other options:
* A. A Statement of Work (SOW) is used for defining project deliverables, not training.
* C. Network diagrams are useful for understanding architecture, but not for operational procedures.
* D. A mentor program can help, but it doesn't scale or provide immediate troubleshooting steps.

NEW QUESTION # 27
A network engineer is establishing a wireless network for handheld inventory scanners in a manufacturing company's warehouse. The engineer needs an authentication mechanism for these scanners that uses the Wi-Fi network and works with the company's Active Directory. The business requires that the solution authenticate the users and authorize the scanners. Which of the following provides the best solution for authentication and authorization?

- A. TACACS+
- B. RADIUS
- C. LDAP
- D. PKI

Answer: B

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:
RADIUS (Remote Authentication Dial-In User Service) is the best-fit protocol for this requirement. It supports both authentication and authorization and is widely used in Wi-Fi network environments for client device authentication using credentials stored in centralized directories such as Active Directory.
RADIUS integrates seamlessly with enterprise authentication sources and supports EAP (Extensible Authentication Protocol), making it compatible with Wi-Fi-based client devices. It also allows for role-based access control, enabling policy enforcement specific to device types (e.g., inventory scanners).
Relevant Extract from CompTIA CloudNetX CNX-001 Study Guide - "Authentication and Authorization Technologies":
"RADIUS provides centralized authentication, authorization, and accounting (AAA) services and is commonly used for securing wireless access in conjunction with Active Directory."
"Organizations use RADIUS to manage Wi-Fi authentication for user devices and enforce security policies during access attempts."
Using a RADIUS server with 802.1X on the Wi-Fi infrastructure allows the scanners (and their users) to be authenticated against Active Directory and mapped to the correct authorization policies. TACACS+ is geared toward device management, LDAP alone doesn't handle the Wi-Fi 802.1X handshake, and PKI by itself wouldn't provide the user-to-device authorization flow needed. RADIUS gives you both authentication and authorization tied into AD.

NEW QUESTION # 28

A cloud network engineer needs to enable network flow analysis in the VPC so headers and payload of captured data can be inspected. Which of the following should the engineer use for this task?

- A. Syslog service
- B. Network flows
- C. Traffic mirroring
- D. Application monitoring

Answer: C

Explanation:

VPC Traffic Mirroring lets you capture copies of inbound and outbound network traffic, full packet headers and payload, and send them to appliances or analysis tools for deep inspection, which goes beyond the metadata provided by standard flow logs.

NEW QUESTION # 29

A network administrator is troubleshooting a user's workstation that is unable to connect to the company network. The results of commands the administrator runs on the workstation are shown below:

   10.21.12.10          1A-21-11-43-10-BB

Which of the following is the mostlikely cause of the issues?

- A. Broadcast storm
- B. Asynchronous routing
- C. IP address conflict
- D. DHCP server down

Answer: C
