Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 48

When choosing CCTV cameras, the correct order of selection criteria, from most important to least important, is:

- A. Sensitivity, resolution, features
- B. Features, resolution, sensitivity
- C. Resolution, features, sensitivity
- D. Resolution, sensitivity, features

Answer: A

Explanation:

When selecting CCTV cameras, the most important factor is sensitivity-how well the camera performs in varying light conditions. Next is resolution, which determines image clarity. Features (like zoom, analytics, or pan/tilt) are helpful but secondary to basic image capture quality.

A, C, and D misplace the priority order. Sensitivity is paramount, especially for surveillance in low-light environments.
