ISQI ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level, Test Automation Engineering Sample Questions (Q23-Q28):

NEW QUESTION # 23

Which of the following statements about the reuse of TAS artefacts is TRUE?

- A. To enable reuse of TAS artefacts, a good design for reuse is built into the TAA and to further action are needed during the TAS lifecycle
- B. Reusable TAS artefacts can include components (or parts of components) associated with different layers of the TAA

- C. Communications maintenance and improvements for reusing TAS artefacts are modifyaddressed during the design of the TAA
- D. Reusable TAS artifacts associated with the definition layer of the TAA include the adaptors to the SUT components and/or interfaces

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 24

Your goal is to verify completeness, consistency and correct behavior of an automated test suite. The TAS has been proven to successfully install in the SUT environment. All the preliminary checks to verify the correct functioning of the automated test environment and test tool configuration, installation and setup have successfully completed.

Which of the following is NOT a relevant check for achieving your goal in this scenario?

- A. Checking whether the loading of the TAS is repeatable in the SUT environment
- B. Checking whether the post condition have been fulfilled for all the test cases
- C. Checking whether all the test cases produce repeatable outcomes
- D. Checking whether all the test cases contain the expected results

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 25

Consider a TAS that exclusively uses the APIs of a SUT. To make this work, significant changes have been required to the SUT by adding a set of dedicated test interfaces to the APIs. All the automated tests will use these test interfaces when interacting with the SUT. Assume that you are currently verifying the correctness of the automated test environment and test tool setup.

Which of the following would you expect to be the MOST specific risk associated with this scenario?

- A. False alarms, that are unlikely to occur in the real world, will be observed during testing
- B. The process of configuring the TAS will be error-prone due to manual intervention
- C. The automated test cases will not contain the expected result
- D. The connectivity from the TAS to the dedicated test interfaces will not work

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 26

Which of the following statements about the relationship between TAA, TAS and TAF is true?

- A. A TAF can be used to implement a TAS, which is an implementation of a TAA
- B. A TAS can be used to implement a TAF, which is an implementation of a TAA
- C. A TAF can be used to implement a TAA, which is an implementation of a TAS
- D. A TAS can be used to implement a TAA, which is an implementation of a TAF

Answer: A

Explanation:

In TAE terminology, the Test Automation Architecture (TAA) is the conceptual, high-level blueprint that describes how automation will be structured, what layers exist, how components interact, and how the automation connects to the SUT and supporting systems. The Test Automation Solution (TAS) is the concrete realization of that architecture in a specific context-tools, infrastructure, pipelines, conventions, and components assembled to deliver automated testing capability. The Test Automation Framework (TAF) is a structured set of reusable libraries, guidelines, and mechanisms that supports efficient development, execution, reporting, and maintenance of automated tests; it is commonly a key part used to build the TAS.

TAE documents commonly present this relationship as: TAA (design) # implemented as TAS (solution) # constructed using one or more TAFs (framework elements) plus tools and environment components. Options B, C, and D invert these relationships and misrepresent the concept that architecture is implemented by a solution, not the other way around. Therefore, the statement that a TAF can be used to implement a TAS, which is an implementation of a TAA, is the correct relationship.

NEW QUESTION # 27

Which of the following is the BEST example of how static analysis tools can help improve the test automation code quality in terms of security?

- A. Static analysis tools can ensure there are no security vulnerabilities within test automation code
- B. Static analysis tools can help detect the presence of repeated instances of code within test automation code
- C. Static analysis tools do not generate false positives when attempting to detect security vulnerabilities within test automation code
- D. Static analysis tools can help detect hard-coded credentials that expose sensitive information within test automation code

Answer: D

Explanation:

TAE highlights that test automation code can introduce security risks, particularly when it handles secrets (API keys, passwords, tokens), test accounts, and connections to production-like systems. Static analysis tools can scan source code for insecure patterns and policy violations without executing the code. A common, high- impact security issue in automation is hard-coded credentials or secrets embedded in scripts, configuration files committed to version control, or test utilities. Detecting these is a direct security-quality improvement: it reduces exposure risk and supports compliance. Option A is incorrect because static analysis can produce false positives; detection heuristics are not perfect. Option B is useful for maintainability (duplication), but it is not specifically a security improvement example. Option D overclaims: static analysis cannot guarantee the absence of security vulnerabilities; it can only detect certain classes of issues. Therefore, the best security- focused example is that static analysis can identify hard-coded credentials and other sensitive data exposure in test automation code.
