College Admission American Nurses Credentialing Center: Adult Psychiatric-Mental Health Nurse Practitioner-Board Certified Sample Questions (Q627-Q632):

NEW QUESTION # 627

The majority of homeless families are headed by whom?

- A. The maternal grandfather due to the rate of divorce and absent fathers
- B. An adult sibling
- C. A single parent who is usually female
- D. A single parent who is usually male

Answer: C

Explanation:

Female-headed households are at high risk of becoming homeless if the head of household has limited education or employment skills, low-paying employment with little or no benefits, and limited access to affordable housing.

NEW QUESTION # 628

Which of the following statements about dementia is least accurate?

- A. Those dementias caused by or related to another disease or condition are secondary dementias.
- B. Persons with dementia always suffer from aphasia.
- C. As dementia progresses, apraxia may develop.
- D. The reversibility of a dementia is a function of the underlying pathology and of the availability and timely application of effective treatment.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The statement that is least accurate about dementia from the given options is "Persons with dementia always suffer from aphasia." This statement is inaccurate because not all individuals with dementia suffer from aphasia, which is a condition that impairs one's ability to process language.

Although it is true that language can be affected in persons with dementia, it is not a guaranteed symptom for all individuals. The severity and progression of dementia varies greatly between individuals. In more severe forms of dementia, an individual may indeed suffer from aphasia and may not speak at all.

The progression and manifestation of symptoms in dementia is influenced by a variety of factors, including the underlying cause of the dementia, the individual's overall health, and the timeliness and effectiveness of treatment.

Furthermore, other conditions may also develop as dementia progresses, such as apraxia - a disorder of motor planning which can affect an individual's ability to perform learned movements. Therefore, while aphasia can be a symptom of dementia, it is not accurate to state that all persons with dementia always suffer from it.

Understanding the varied symptoms and experiences of individuals with dementia is vital for providing effective care and treatment. It is important to remember that each individual's experience with dementia is unique, and not all will exhibit the same symptoms or progress at the same rate.

NEW QUESTION # 629

What is the term for a complete set of all a person's or an organism's DNA?

- A. mRNA
- B. Chromosome
- C. Gene
- D. Genome

Answer: D

Explanation:

A genome is a complete set of DNA.

DNA is made up of two twisted, paired strands composed of sugars linked by nucleotide bases. Messenger RNA (mRNA) codes for an amino acid. Chromosomes are structures of DNA in the nucleus of the cell, and each chromosome only contains a fraction of an individual's DNA. A gene is a section of DNA that results in a biological effect.

NEW QUESTION # 630

Which of the following abnormal labs would most likely be related to a patient's prescription for carbamazepine?

- A. Sodium

- B. Magnesium
- C. Calcium
- D. Potassium

Answer: A

Explanation:

Hyponatremia is the most common electrolyte abnormality associated with psychotropic medications.

Medications that are frequently associated with the drug-induced syndrome of inappropriate antidiuretic hormone secretion (SIADH) are oxcarbazepine, carbamazepine, and serotonergic antidepressants.

NEW QUESTION # 631

Many patients are now implementing complementary and alternative therapies (CATS) with traditional treatment. Melatonin is commonly used for sleep enhancement. A PMHNP should provide which of the following patient teaching instructions regarding the dosing of melatonin for a young woman?

- A. It may cause breast tenderness
- B. It may cause heavier periods
- C. It may disrupt ovulation
- D. It may contribute to premenstrual tension

Answer: C

Explanation:

Melatonin can inhibit ovulation at larger doses. It is not commonly associated with breast tenderness, heavier periods, or increased premenstrual tension.
