CompTIA Data+ Exam (2025) Sample Questions (Q115-Q120):

NEW QUESTION # 115

A data analyst is working on an initial analysis of the dataset in the following table:

DateTime	Count
2024-01-01	12
2024-01-02	245
2024-01-02	13
2024-01-03	13
2024-01-03	12
00:00:00	12

Which of the following issues should the analyst flag in the data report?

- A. Duplication
- B. Completeness
- C. Outlier
- D. Mismatch

Answer: C

Explanation:

This question falls under the Data Analysis domain, focusing on identifying data quality issues. The table shows counts over time, and the analyst needs to flag an issue in the data.

* Completeness (Option A): Completeness refers to missing data, but all rows have values for DateTime and Count.

* Outlier (Option B): The count of 245 on 2024-01-02 is significantly higher than other counts (12-13), indicating an outlier that should be investigated for accuracy.

* Mismatch (Option C): Mismatch implies inconsistent data types or formats, but the DateTime and Count columns appear consistent except for the last row (addressed separately).

* Duplication (Option D): Duplication refers to identical rows, but no rows are identical (same DateTime and Count).

The last row ("00:00:00", 12) has a formatting issue, but the most significant issue for analysis is the outlier (245), as it could skew results. The DA0-002 Data Analysis domain includes "applying the appropriate descriptive statistical methods," such as identifying outliers in datasets.

NEW QUESTION # 116

Which of the following is found in metadata?

- A. Data lineage
- B. Variable types
- C. Syntax
- D. Transformations

Answer: B

Explanation:

This question pertains to the Data Concepts and Environments domain, focusing on the content of metadata. Metadata describes data attributes, and the task is to identify what it typically includes.

* Transformations (Option A): Transformations (e.g., data cleaning steps) are part of data lineage, not metadata.

* Data lineage (Option B): Data lineage tracks data flow and transformations, which is related to metadata but not a direct component.

* Syntax (Option C): Syntax refers to code structure, not a metadata component.

* Variable types (Option D): Metadata includes information about data fields, such as variable types (e.g., integer, string), which is a standard component.

The DA0-002 Data Concepts and Environments domain includes understanding "data schemas and dimensions," and metadata typically contains details like variable types to describe the dataset.

NEW QUESTION # 117

A product goes viral on social media, creating high demand. Distribution channels are facing supply chain issues because the testing and training models that are used for sales forecasting have not encountered similar demand. Which of the following best describes this situation?

- A. Incorrect sizing
- B. Skewing
- C. Data drift
- D. Model bias

Answer: C

Explanation:

This question pertains to the Data Analysis domain, focusing on issues with forecasting models. The scenario describes a sudden change in demand (viral product) that the model couldn't predict because it hasn't seen similar patterns before.

* Model bias (Option A): Model bias occurs when a model systematically favors certain outcomes due to flawed training data, but this scenario is about a change in data patterns, not bias.

* Data drift (Option B): Data drift occurs when the statistical properties of the data change over time (e.g., sudden high demand due to virality), causing the model to perform poorly because it was trained on different patterns, which fits the scenario.

* Incorrect sizing (Option C): This term is vague and not a standard concept in data analysis for this context.

* Skewing (Option D): Skewing refers to data distribution asymmetry, not a change in data patterns affecting model performance.

The DA0-002 Data Analysis domain includes understanding "applying the appropriate descriptive statistical methods," and data drift is a key concept in forecasting when data patterns change unexpectedly.

NEW QUESTION # 118

A data analyst receives an email from the IT department about renewing the company password, and the analyst follows the password reset link as required. Later in the week, the analyst receives the following notification when running a recurring analysis that connects to the database:

Log-in failed for user '<username>'

Which of the following is most likely the reason for this issue?

- A. The analyst did not change the password used to launch the report.
- B. The company changed its database authentication method.
- C. The company is experiencing issues with password replication.
- D. The password expiration process locked the account.

Answer: A

Explanation:

This question falls under the Data Governance domain, focusing on data access and security troubleshooting.

The analyst reset their password, but the recurring analysis failed to log in, indicating a mismatch.

* The company changed its database authentication method (Option A): This would affect all users, not just the analyst, and there's no indication of a broader change.

* The password expiration process locked the account (Option B): The analyst reset the password as required, so the account isn't likely locked due to expiration.

* The analyst did not change the password used to launch the report (Option C): Recurring analyses often use stored credentials. If the analyst updated their password but didn't update the stored credentials for the analysis, the login would fail, making this the most likely reason.

* The company is experiencing issues with password replication (Option D): This is possible but less likely without evidence of broader system issues.

The DA0-002 Data Governance domain includes "data privacy concepts," and ensuring stored credentials match updated passwords is a common issue in recurring analyses.

NEW QUESTION # 119

Which of the following is the best tool for creating a dynamic dashboard?

- A. Power BI
- B. SAS
- C. Excel
- D. RStudio

Answer: A

Explanation:

The question asks for the best tool to create a dynamic dashboard, which falls under the Visualization and Reporting domain of CompTIA Data+ DA0-002. According to the DA0-002 draft objectives, this domain includes understanding tools and techniques for creating effective visualizations, such as dashboards, that can be updated dynamically to reflect real-time or changing data. A dynamic dashboard typically allows for interactivity, real-time updates, and user-driven exploration of data, which is a key focus in this domain.

* Power BI (Option A): Power BI is a business intelligence tool by Microsoft designed specifically for creating interactive and dynamic dashboards. It supports real-time data updates, user interactivity (e.g., filters, slicers), and integration with various data sources, making it ideal for dynamic dashboard creation.

* RStudio (Option B): RStudio is primarily an IDE for the R programming language, used for statistical computing and data analysis. While it can create visualizations, it's not optimized for dynamic dashboards without additional packages like Shiny, and even then, it requires more coding effort compared to Power BI.

* Excel (Option C): Excel is a spreadsheet tool that can create static charts and basic dashboards, but it lacks the interactivity and real-time update capabilities of a true dynamic dashboard tool like Power BI.

* SAS (Option D): SAS is a statistical analysis software suite that excels in data mining and analytics but is not primarily designed for creating dynamic, interactive dashboards.

The DA0-002 Visualization and Reporting domain emphasizes tools that facilitate "the appropriate visualization in the form of a report or dashboard with the proper design components," as noted in similar DA0-001 objectives (web ID: 1). Power BI aligns best with this requirement due to its focus on dynamic, user-friendly dashboard creation.
