CompTIA DataSys+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q107-Q112):

NEW QUESTION # 107

Which of the following is a characteristic of all non-relational databases?

- A. Columns with the same data type
- B. Tabular schema
- C. Unstructured data
- D. Logical record groupings

Answer: C

Explanation:

The characteristic of all non-relational databases is unstructured data. Unstructured data is data that does not have a predefined or fixed format, schema, or structure. Unstructured data can include various types of data, such as text, images, audio, video, etc. Non-relational databases, also known as NoSQL databases, are databases that store and manage unstructured data using different models, such as key-value, document, graph, columnar, etc. Non-relational databases are suitable for handling large volumes, variety, and velocity of data that do not fit well in the relational model. The other options are either characteristics of relational databases or not related to database types at all. For example, columns with the same data type, logical record groupings, and tabular schema are characteristics of relational databases, which are databases that store and manage structured data using tables, rows, columns, and constraints.

NEW QUESTION # 108

A database administrator is creating a table, which will contain customer data, for an online business. Which of the following SQL syntaxes should the administrator use to create an object?

- A.

```
CREATE CUSTOMER
(
  ID INT,
  NAME VARCHAR(100),
  AGE INT
)
```
- B.

```
CREATE TABLE CUSTOMER
(
  ID INT,
  NAME VARCHAR(100),
)
```
- C.

```
CREATE
(
  TABLE CUSTOMER
  ID INT,
  NAME VARCHAR(100),
)
```

```
CREATE TABLE
(
    ID INT,
    NAME VARCHAR(100),
)
```

- D.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The SQL syntax that the administrator should use to create an object is option B. This syntax uses the CREATE TABLE statement to define a new table named customer with four columns: customer_id, name, email, and phone. Each column has a data type and a constraint, such as NOT NULL or PRIMARY KEY. The other options either have syntax errors, use incorrect keywords, or do not specify the table name or columns correctly.

NEW QUESTION # 109

Which of the following is the best alternative to control the temperature in a data center?

- A. Redundant CO2 units
- B. Redundant rack fans
- C. Redundant CPU fans
- D. Redundant AC units

Answer: D

Explanation:

Redundant air conditioning units provide reliable temperature control in data centers, ensuring continuous cooling even if one unit fails, which is critical for preventing overheating.

NEW QUESTION # 110

A group of developers needs access to a database in a development environment, but the database contains sensitive data. Which of the following should the database administrator do before giving the developers access to the environment?

- A. Encrypt connections to the development environment.
- B. Audit access to tables with sensitive data.
- C. Remove sensitive data from tables
- D. Mask the sensitive data.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The database administrator should mask the sensitive data before giving the developers access to the environment. Data masking is a technique that replaces sensitive data with fictitious but realistic data, such as random numbers or characters, to protect it from unauthorized access or exposure. Data masking preserves the format and structure of the original data, but does not reveal its actual value. This allows developers to work with realistic data without compromising its confidentiality or compliance. The other options are either insufficient or excessive for this scenario. For example, auditing access to tables with sensitive data may help monitor and track who accesses the data, but does not prevent it from being seen; removing sensitive data from tables may compromise the quality or completeness of the data, and may not be feasible if there is a large amount of data; encrypting connections to the development environment may protect the data in transit, but not at rest or in use. Reference: CompTIA DataSys+ Course Outline, Domain 4.0 Data and Database Security, Objective 4.2 Given a scenario, implement security controls for databases.

NEW QUESTION # 111

A database administrator executed multiple transactions and needs to finish the operations. Which of the following functions should the administrator use?

- A. Rollback
- B. Return
- C. Save
- D. Commit

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Commit function finalizes all changes made during the transactions, making them permanent in the database.
