CompTIA Cloud Essentials+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q70-Q75):

NEW QUESTION # 70

Which of the following deployment models includes application components on a company's network as well as on the Internet?

- A. Public
- B. Community
- C. Private
- D. Hybrid

Answer: D

Explanation:

A hybrid cloud deployment model includes application components on a company's network as well as on the Internet. A hybrid cloud is a combination of two or more cloud deployment models, such as public, private, or community, that are connected by a common network or technology. A hybrid cloud allows the company to leverage the benefits of both public and private clouds, such as scalability, cost-efficiency, security, and control. A hybrid cloud can also enable the company to use different cloud services for different types of workloads, such as sensitive data, high-performance computing, or disaster recovery<sup>12</sup>. ## NEW QUESTION # 71

The IT department has noticed the costs associated with the server are increasing. The application is scheduled to run uninterrupted for at least two years, and the Chief Financial Officer (CFO) would like the IT department to investigate ways to decrease the costs. Which of the following would MOST likely help to decrease the costs of the server?

- A. Utilize spot instances.
- B. Run the server in a sandbox environment.
- C. Migrate the server to another CSP.
- D. Configure resource tagging on the server.
- E. Convert the server to a reserved instance.

Answer: E

Explanation:

A reserved instance is a type of cloud instance that offers a discounted hourly rate and capacity reservation for a specific period of time, typically one or three years. Reserved instances are suitable for applications that have predictable usage patterns and require uninterrupted performance. By converting the server to a reserved instance, the IT department can reduce the costs of the server by up to 72%, compared to on-demand instances. Additionally, reserved instances can provide more stability and availability than spot instances, which are subject to interruption and fluctuating prices.

NEW QUESTION # 72

A company wants to save on cloud storage costs for data that does not need to be accessible in a timely manner. Which of the following storage types would be the BEST option?

- A. Block
- B. Tape
- C. Cold
- D. Object

Answer: C

Explanation:

Cold storage is a type of cloud storage that is designed for data that does not need to be accessible in a timely manner, such as backup, archive, or historical data. Cold storage offers the lowest cost per gigabyte of storage, but also the highest cost and latency for data retrieval. Cold storage is suitable for data that is rarely accessed, has low performance requirements, and can tolerate delays of hours or days. Cold storage can help a company save on cloud storage costs by reducing the use of more expensive storage tiers, such as hot, warm, or cool storage. Cold storage can also provide high durability, security, and scalability for long-term data retention.

Cold storage is different from other storage types, such as block, object, or tape. Block storage is a type of cloud storage that stores data in fixed-sized blocks that are attached to a virtual machine as a disk volume. Block storage provides high performance and low latency for data that needs frequent and random access, such as databases, operating systems, or applications. Object storage is a type of cloud storage that stores data as objects that consist of data, metadata, and a unique identifier. Object storage provides high scalability and durability for data that needs simple and direct access, such as files, images, videos, or documents. Tape storage is a type of physical storage that stores data on magnetic tapes that are stored in tape libraries or vaults. Tape storage provides low cost and high capacity for data that needs offline or long-term backup, but also has high retrieval time and risk of data loss or degradation. ### NEW QUESTION # 73

Users are reporting a red warning in the address bar of the SaaS application. Which of the following access types should be used to address this issue?

- A. TFTP
- B. HTTPS
- C. SSH
- D. RDP

Answer: B

Explanation:

A red warning in the address bar typically indicates that the connection to the website is not secure, often due to the use of HTTP instead of HTTPS. HTTPS (HyperText Transfer Protocol Secure) encrypts the data transmitted between the user's browser and the web server, ensuring a secure connection. Using HTTPS would address the warning and ensure the data is transmitted securely.

NEW QUESTION # 74

A business analyst is writing a disaster recovery strategy. Which of the following should the analyst include in the document? (Choose three.)

- A. Autoscaling
- B. Geo-redundancy
- C. Capacity on demand
- D. Resource tagging
- E. Automation
- F. Replication
- G. Backups
- H. Elasticity

Answer: B,F,G

Explanation:

A disaster recovery strategy is a plan that defines how an organization can recover its data, systems, and operations in the event of a disaster, such as a natural calamity, a cyberattack, or a human error. A disaster recovery strategy should include the following elements:

Backups: Backups are copies of data and files that are stored in a separate location from the original source. Backups help to restore the data in case of loss, corruption, or deletion. Backups can be performed manually or automatically, and can be stored on-premises, off-site, or in the cloud. Backups should be encrypted, secured, and tested regularly to ensure their integrity and availability.

Replication: Replication is the process of copying and synchronizing data and systems across multiple locations or platforms. Replication helps to maintain the consistency and availability of the data and systems in case of a failure or outage. Replication can be done at different levels, such as storage, database, application, or virtual machine. Replication can be synchronous or asynchronous, depending on the latency and bandwidth requirements.

Geo-redundancy: Geo-redundancy is a feature that allows the distribution and replication of data and systems across multiple geographic regions or zones. Geo-redundancy helps to ensure the resiliency and continuity of the data and systems in case of a regional disaster or disruption. Geo-redundancy can also improve the performance and latency of the data and systems by serving the requests from the nearest location. Geo-redundancy can be achieved by using cloud services that offer multi-region or multi-zone capabilities.
