CompTIA A+ Certification Exam: Core 1 Sample Questions (Q118-Q123):

NEW QUESTION # 118

A user's phone does not respond to touch. A technician inspects the phone but does not see any evidence of physical damage. The technician restarts the device, which does not fix the issue. Which of the following components should the technician examine next?

- A. Battery
- B. Digitizer
- C. Stylus
- D. Screen

Answer: B

Explanation:

The digitizer is the component responsible for detecting touch input on a screen. If touch is not registering and there's no physical damage, the digitizer may be faulty.

From CompTIA A+ 220-1101 Official Study Guide, Objective 3.1 - Mobile device hardware:

"If a touchscreen device does not respond to input and the screen is intact, the digitizer (touch sensor) may be defective." Verified Source:

NEW QUESTION # 119

A user brings a laptop to work every morning, correctly seats it in the docking station and then opens the laptop to begin work with no issues. After the user left the laptop at home during a two-week vacation the laptop is no longer working. Upon returning to the office, the user reports that the keyboard and display are no longer working. Which of the following should the technician ask the user to do first?

- A. Connect the laptop directly to the network.
- B. Plug the laptop in and let it charge overnight
- C. Ensure the docking station is plugged in.
- D. Press and release the laptop power button.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Reasoning: Many docking stations provide power and functionality only when the laptop is properly powered on. If the laptop was powered off (e.g., during the vacation), docking it will not automatically turn it on. The technician should first ensure the laptop is powered on by pressing the power button.

This is a common troubleshooting step when laptops in docking stations appear non-functional.

Relevance to CompTIA A+ Core 1: This falls under Objective 5.2, which covers diagnosing and resolving common laptop and mobile device issues.

Why the Other Options Are Incorrect:

A: Ensure the docking station is plugged in:

While ensuring power to the docking station is important, the scenario specifies that the issue occurred after a vacation. The likelihood of the docking station losing power coincidentally during the vacation is low.

Verifying the laptop's power state should be the first step.

C: Plug the laptop in and let it charge overnight:

There is no indication the laptop's battery is drained. While charging could resolve a dead battery, the user is more likely experiencing an issue where the laptop is powered off but docked, so charging overnight is not the best first step.

D:Connect the laptop directly to the network:

A network connection will not resolve the primary issue of the keyboard and display not working. Addressing the laptop's power state is a higher priority.

Practical Example:

If a user returns from a vacation and places a powered-off laptop into a docking station, it may not automatically power on. Pressing the power button ensures the laptop is operational and communicating with the docking station.

CompTIA A+ Exam Objective Alignment:

Objective 5.2: Troubleshooting common laptop issues, including power, display, and peripheral connectivity.

NEW QUESTION # 122

A user is having issues when charging a device with a Lightning cable. The cable is not recognized when it is plugged into the device. This issue is usually resolved by flipping the cable over. This issue does not occur with other devices of the same type. Which of the following would most likely cause the issue?

- A. The battery may be swelling and needs inspection.
- B. The device needs to be restarted.
- C. The charging port is dirty or damaged
- D. The cable is failing and needs to be replaced

Answer: C

Explanation:

When a Lightning cable works only when flipped a certain way or doesn't function consistently, it is typically due to debris or damage in the charging port. Cleaning the port or inspecting it for wear resolves the issue.
