NEW QUESTION # 124

A counselor who uses a here-and-now focus in a group would most likely encourage members to

- A. talk to, rather than about, each other.
- B. avoid transference of past issues.
- C. provide directive feedback to others.

Answer: A

Explanation:

A here-and-now focus in group counseling encourages members to interact directly with one another about their present experiences in the group. Counselors guide members to talk to, rather than about, each other, fostering authentic communication, immediacy, and stronger group cohesion. "Here-and-now group leadership encourages members to address each other directly to process feelings and reactions in the present moment." Reference: Helwig, A. A. (2020). CPCE Study Guide and Review; Corey, G. (2016). Theory and Practice of Group Counseling (9th Edition).

NEW QUESTION # 125

What term do counselors familiar with Freudian development theory use to describe a male child's fear of his father for the son's unconscious feelings toward the mother?

- A. reactive attachment
- B. superego
- C. castration anxiety

Answer: C

Explanation:

Freudian developmental theory describes the Oedipus complex in which a male child experiences unconscious sexual feelings for his mother and views his father as a rival. The resulting fear that the father will punish him for these feelings is termed castration anxiety. "Castration anxiety is the boy's fear of losing his genitals as punishment for his sexual desires toward his mother, according to Freud's psychosexual stages." Reference: Helwig, A. A. (2020). CPCE Study Guide and Review; Gladding, S. T. (2018). Counseling: A Comprehensive Profession (8th Edition).

NEW QUESTION # 126

What type of data would be most useful in the formative evaluation of a long-standing group for adolescents on probation?

- A. descriptive data of client characteristics and needs for targeted recruitment
- B. longitudinal data on recidivism and high school or GED completion post-group
- C. focus group data of clients' most meaningful experiences in the group

Answer: A

Explanation:

Formative evaluation is designed to collect information that can be used to improve a program while it is still ongoing. Descriptive data on client characteristics and needs are crucial for making adjustments in recruitment and group structure, and ensuring the group is meeting the needs of its target population.

Summative evaluation, in contrast, would use outcome data (such as recidivism or graduation rates) after the program has been implemented.

- A. conflict resolution practice
- B. precision attending
- C. intentional non-attending

Answer: C

Explanation:

Intentional non-attending is a counseling skill in which the counselor deliberately shifts focus away from unproductive or repetitive content (such as ongoing complaints) to encourage movement toward more constructive discussion. This technique can help break the cycle of rumination in depressed clients.

Reference: Helwig, A. A. (2020). CPCE Study Guide and Review; Ivey, A. E., & Ivey, M. B. (2017). Intentional Interviewing and Counseling.

Which assessment would be most helpful for a college student client who is having difficulty choosing a career?

- A. career planning survey

- B. career decision scale
- C. career beliefs inventory

Answer: B

It helps counselors identify whether a client is struggling to make a career decision and where they might need support in the decision-making process. This makes it especially useful for college students having difficulty choosing a career path.
