NEW QUESTION # 109
Which of the following is the most likely cause?

- A. NetBIOS is enabled.
- B. DNS servers are manually set.
- C. DHCP is enabled.
- D. The subnet mask Is Incorrect.

Answer: B

Explanation:
The key detail in the ipconfig output is that the system is receiving an IP address, subnet mask, default gateway, and DHCP server information via DHCP, but the DNS servers shown are 8.8.8.8 and 8.8.4.4, which are Google's public DNS servers. In most corporate networks, DNS is provided internally by the DHCP server-usually the same device assigning the IP address. When DNS values are different from DHCP-provided defaults, it indicates manual DNS configuration.
CompTIA A+ emphasizes that mismatched DNS settings can cause browsing issues, name-resolution delays, or an inability to access internal resources. DNS is critical because it translates domain names into IP addresses; if manually configured, the device bypasses the organization's DNS server and may not resolve internal hostnames.
The subnet mask is correct for a Class B private network subdivided using /24 (255.255.255.0). NetBIOS being enabled is common and not a cause of connectivity issues here. DHCP being enabled is normal and functioning correctly, as shown by the proper IP lease obtained.
Thus, the anomalous and most likely problematic configuration is manually configured DNS, making Option D correct.

NEW QUESTION # 110
An end user reports that their laptop has a blank screen. A technician observes the keyboard lights are on, and the fan is running. Which of the following should the technician do next?

- A. Contact vendor support
- B. Connect to an external monitor
- C. Check the display ribbon cable.
- D. Replace the inverter

Answer: B

Explanation:
When a laptop powers on but the screen is blank, the quickest way to isolate the problem is to connect to an external monitor. This helps determine if the issue is with the laptop display or with the graphics subsystem.
From CompTIA A+ 220-1101 Official Study Guide, Objective 4.1 - Troubleshoot common hardware problems:

"A blank screen on a laptop with power indicators lit should be tested with an external display first to rule out a faulty screen or ribbon cable." Verified Source:

NEW QUESTION # 111

A software developer wants to test a new application in an environment that limits access to the OS. Which of the following should the developer implement?

- A. VDI
- B. Container
- C. Quarantined PC
- D. Type 2 hypervisor

Answer: B

Explanation:
A container is the ideal environment for software testing when access to the underlying operating system must be restricted. CompTIA A+ explains that containers isolate applications from the host OS by packaging the app and all its dependencies into a controlled environment. This prevents the application from modifying or interfering with the host system and ensures predictable, consistent behavior across environments.
Unlike virtual machines, containers do not include a full OS installation; they share the host OS kernel but run in isolated user-space environments. This makes them lightweight, fast to deploy, and secure-perfect for developers testing new or potentially unstable applications.
A Type 2 hypervisor hosts full virtual machines but does not inherently limit OS access. A VDI provides remote desktops but is not designed for controlled application testing. A quarantine PC is used for isolating infected or suspicious systems, not structured development testing.
Thus, containers provide the controlled, restricted environment required.

NEW QUESTION # 112

A technician recently updated the firmware on a dual-BIOS motherboard. Following the update, the system has been stuck in a boot loop and cannot start an OS from any internal or external device. The technician cannot access the UEFI menu either. Which of the following should the technician do next?

- A. Downgrade the firmware via USB.
- B. Reapply thermal paste to the CPU.
- C. Enable the secondary configuration.
- D. Start a warranty repair of the motherboard.

Answer: C

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation:
Dual-BIOS motherboards contain two firmware chips. If the primary BIOS becomes corrupted, the system can failover to the secondary BIOS. Most boards allow manual enabling of the secondary BIOS via a physical switch or jumper.
* Option B: Downgrading firmware may not be possible if the system won't POST or access UEFI.
* Option C: Not necessary until both BIOS chips are non-functional.
* Option D: Thermal paste affects heat dissipation, not BIOS/boot behavior.
CompTIA A+ Core 1 Exam Objective Reference:
* Objective 3.5: Given a scenario, troubleshoot problems related to motherboards, RAM, CPU, and power.
