Huawei HCIP-Storage V5.5 Sample Questions (Q108-Q113):

NEW QUESTION # 108

The OceanStor Pacific series storage systems support the _____ feature. This feature uses the classic token bucket algorithm to control the traffic upper limit. If local tokens are insufficient, tokens are continuously generated and added to the token bucket based on the OPS and bandwidth upper limit of the corresponding QoS control object as the rate.

Answer:

Explanation:

Traffic shaping

Explanation:

This question pertains to Quality of Service (QoS) features in Huawei OceanStor Pacific series storage systems. The HCIP-Storage V5.5 Training Material (Module 3: Scale-Out Storage Technologies) describes: "The OceanStor Pacific series supports the traffic shaping feature, which uses the classic token bucket algorithm to control the upper limit of traffic. When tokens in the bucket are insufficient, the system generates and adds tokens based on the operations per second (OPS) and bandwidth limits defined for the QoS control object." Traffic shaping regulates data flow to prevent network congestion and ensure fair resource allocation, making it the correct feature name for this description.

NEW QUESTION # 109

When learning the SmartVirtualization feature of Huawei flash storage, a new employee is not familiar with eDevLUNs and external LUNs. Which of the following statements are true about the eDevLUNs and external LUNs?

- A. eDevLUNs belong to storage pools created in the local storage system
- B. eDevLUNs can be created regardless of whether external LUNs are normal.
- C. If the administrator has not configured any value-added feature for eDevLUNs, each eDevLUN occupies small space in the storage pool of the local storage system.
- D. An eDevLUN consists of actual data and metadata. The storage space required by metadata is provided by the heterogeneous storage system, and the physical space required by actual data is provided by the local storage system.

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

Option B is correct. Huawei documentation on SmartVirtualization explains that when no value-added feature is configured for an eDevLUN, the local storage system only needs to consume a small amount of space, mainly for metadata management. Therefore, each eDevLUN occupies only a small amount of space in the local storage pool.

Option C is also correct. Huawei states that eDevLUNs are created based on storage pools on the local storage system. This means eDevLUNs belong to storage pools created locally, even though the actual external capacity comes from the heterogeneous storage.

Option A is incorrect because it reverses the roles of the two storage systems. In SmartVirtualization, the actual data resides on the external/heterogeneous storage system, while the local storage system mainly stores metadata and provides management for value-added services. The option states the opposite, so it is false.

Option D is incorrect because Huawei requires the external LUN to be in a normal state before an eDevLUN can be created. If the external LUN is abnormal, the eDevLUN creation condition is not met. Therefore, eDevLUNs cannot be created regardless of external LUN status.
