NEW QUESTION # 54

Some of the playbooks on the Phantom server should only be executed by members of the admin role. How can this rule be applied?

- A. Add a filter block to all restricted playbooks that filters for runRole - "Admin".
- B. Make sure the Execute Playbook capability is removed from all roles except admin.
- C. Add a tag with restricted access to the restricted playbooks.
- D. Place restricted playbooks in a second source repository that has restricted access.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

The correct answer is C because the best way to restrict the execution of playbooks to members of the admin role is to make sure the Execute Playbook capability is removed from all roles except admin. The Execute Playbook capability is a permission that allows a user to run any playbook on any container. By default, all roles have this capability, but it can be removed or added in the Phantom UI by going to Administration > User Management > Roles. Removing this capability from all roles except admin will ensure that only admin users can execute playbooks. See Splunk SOAR Documentation for more details.

- C. Map CIM to CEF fields.

Answer: B

See Forwarding events from Splunk to Phantom for more details.

- A. Workbooks may not be customized; only default workbooks are permitted within Phantom.
- B. Workbooks apply service level agreements (SLAs) to containers and monitor completion status on the ROI dashboard.
- C. Workbooks automatically implement a customized processing of events using Python code.
- D. Workbooks guide user activity and coordination during event analysis and case operations.

Explanation:

The main purpose of using a customized workbook is to guide user activity and coordination during event analysis and case operations. Workbooks can be customized to include different phases, tasks, and instructions for the users. The other options are not valid purposes of using a customized workbook.

Customized workbooks in Splunk SOAR are designed to guide users through the process of analyzing events and managing cases.
