SAP Certified - Database Administrator - SAP HANA Sample Questions

(Q10-Q15):

NEW QUESTION # 10

A regional industrial services firm completes an SAP HANA installation rehearsal for a new on-premises administration environment. The database starts successfully, and SAP HANA cockpit shows it as available. During validation, the administrator notices that the installation checklist confirms database startup but does not include verification that the administrative backup destination and monitoring collection were bound to the new system. The handover owner wants to accept the system because the installation log shows no error.

The constraint is that the administrator must confirm the installed database is administratively operable before handover. The decision must include evidence for routine controls, not only the installation log and startup state.

Which action best supports accepting the installation rehearsal?

- A. Accept the rehearsal because the installation log has no error and the database starts successfully.
- B. Restart the database and accept the handover if SAP HANA cockpit still shows the system as available.
- C. Create a handover note stating that backup and monitoring controls will be verified after the first workload run.
- D. Bind and validate the backup destination and monitoring collection for the new system before accepting handover.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Feedback:

This completes the post-installation operational binding before handover. Validating backup destination and monitoring collection confirms that installation, startup, administration controls, and acceptance evidence are aligned.

NEW QUESTION # 11

A packaged foods company is preparing a controlled maintenance cycle for its on-premises SAP HANA environment while keeping a separate SAP HANA Cloud database available for downstream reporting. The initial upgrade preparation completed, but the final readiness review shows that one administration path still reflects pre-maintenance behavior while the main lifecycle checks show the target state for most components. No broad outage is visible, yet the validation team cannot sign off because the operational view is inconsistent.

The maintenance coordinator wants to avoid unnecessary rollback and complete only the correction needed to restore lifecycle consistency before the business window opens.

Which action is the best choice?

- A. Accept the current state because most components already show the target level and no outage is visible.
- B. Roll back the entire maintenance cycle because any inconsistent administrative view proves the upgrade cannot be trusted.
- C. Redirect all validation to the cloud database and postpone the remaining on-premises lifecycle correction to a later window.
- D. Confirm which lifecycle element remains out of sync and complete the pending maintenance finalization before releasing the system

Answer: D

Explanation:

Feedback:

The operational issue is lifecycle inconsistency, not total service failure. Most checks show the target state, but one administrative path still reflects pre-maintenance behavior. That means the best action is to isolate the specific lifecycle element that did not finalize correctly and complete that finalization before release. This supports controlled maintenance completion without excessive disruption.

NEW QUESTION # 12

A marine logistics company is planning a phased move from SAP HANA on-premises to SAP HANA Cloud. In the first rehearsal, the source export completes and the SAP HANA Cloud target is reachable. During post-transfer checks, the administrator notices that the validation workbook records transfer completion but has no evidence that monitoring and backup administration were reviewed for the cloud target after import. The project lead wants to approve the phase because the data movement finished.

The constraint is that the administrator must support incremental modernization while confirming that the target can be administered after migration. Approval must be based on transfer success plus operational readiness evidence.

What should the administrator recommend before approving the migration phase?

- A. Defer monitoring and backup administration review until after production cutover to keep the phased plan on schedule.
- B. Add target-side monitoring and backup administration validation to the rehearsal evidence, then approve only after those checks pass.
- C. Approve the phase because source export completion and target reachability prove the migration path works.
- D. Repeat only the source export so the data movement result is confirmed before the production window.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Feedback:

This resolves the rehearsal evidence gap while preserving the phased modernization approach. Adding target-side monitoring and backup validation confirms that transfer, cloud target operation, and post-migration administration readiness are aligned before approval.

NEW QUESTION # 13

A regional textile manufacturer is rehearsing a phased migration from SAP HANA on-premises to SAP HANA Cloud. The source export finishes, the cloud target is reachable, and a small validation query succeeds on the target. During the readiness review, the administrator notices that the migration evidence does not include confirmation that the target-side administration user can perform required monitoring and backup review tasks after import. The project sponsor wants approval because the transfer and query were successful.

The constraint is that the migration wave must prove operational administration readiness in the cloud target, not only data movement. The rehearsal must remain repeatable for later migration waves.

Which recommendation is most appropriate?

- A. Approve the migration wave because the export completed and the target query succeeded.
- B. Repeat the export with a larger dataset so the successful target query has stronger data coverage.
- C. Perform target-side administration validation with the intended cloud administration user and approve only after monitoring and backup review checks pass.
- D. Use the on-premises administration user for target checks so the team can reuse the same operational procedure after migration.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Feedback:

This validates the cloud administration path required after migration. Using the intended target-side administration user confirms that migration execution, target access, monitoring review, backup review, and repeatable operational evidence are aligned.

NEW QUESTION # 14

A wholesale distributor is preparing an SAP HANA maintenance activity for an on-premises database. The administrator runs the upgrade preparation checks before the approved window. The tool output shows the target revision is acceptable, but a preparation check flags insufficient free space in the temporary working area used during upgrade execution. The database remains available, and the application team asks whether the activity can proceed because the software package itself has already been staged. The constraint is that the administrator must avoid starting an upgrade that can fail mid-execution and leave operations without a clean validation result.

Which action best supports a controlled upgrade start?

- A. Move monitoring activity to SAP HANA cockpit during the window so the team can react if the upgrade stops.
- B. Take a new database backup and proceed because backup availability removes the need to clear preparation warnings.
- C. Start the upgrade because the target revision is acceptable and the software package has already been staged.
- D. Resolve the temporary working area capacity issue, rerun the preparation checks, and start the upgrade only after the check passes.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Feedback:

This corrects the preparation dependency before upgrade execution begins. Rerunning the checks confirms that the staged package, temporary working area, and lifecycle readiness conditions are aligned for a controlled start.
