NEW QUESTION # 10

A developer needs to move content (/content/my-site/en/about-us) from a Stage (STG) Author environment to a Production (PROD) Author.

A content package named content-about-us-20210101 is created on STG Author.

Once the content is reviewed in PROD, the content Author will activate and make the content public.

Which command should the DevOps engineer use?

- A. `curl -u admin:admin -X POST -F name="content about us" https:// < PROD > /crx/packmgr/service/.json/etc/packages/export`
- B. `curl -u < user > : < password > -O https:// < PROD > /etc/packages/my_packages/content-about-us-20210101.zip`
`curl -u < user > : < password > -F install=true -F force=true -F file=@content-about-us-20210101.zip https:// < PROD > /crx/packmgr/service.jsp`
- C. `curl -u < user > : < password > -O https:// < STG > /etc/packages/my_packages/content-about-us-20210101.zip`

curl -u admin:admin -F file=@'content-about-us-20210101' -F name='content about us' -F force=true -F install=false
http://localhost/crx/packmgr/service.jsp

Answer: C

Explanation:

To manually migrate a package between two AEM instances via the command line, the process involves two distinct curl commands using the Jackrabbit Package Manager API.

* Download: You must download the generated .zip file from the source (STG) environment using -O to save the remote file locally.

* Upload & Install: You must upload the local file to the target (PROD) environment and simultaneously install it by passing the -F file=@ < filename > along with the multipart form parameters -F install=true and -F force=true to the /crx/packmgr/service.jsp endpoint.

A DevOps engineer must analyze a performance issue on AEM as a Cloud Service. A page is running slowly and takes a long time to render. A query seems to be the cause.
