CompTIA A+ Certification Exam: Core 1 Sample Questions (Q837-Q842):

NEW QUESTION # 837

A technician just finished building a new PC and needs to install a firmware update for the system board UEFI. The technician is experiencing issues while accessing the USB key. Which of the following features should the technician most likely disable in order to complete this task?

- A. TPM security
- B. PXE boot capability
- C. USB 3.0 support
- D. Secure Boot

Answer: D

Explanation:

Secure Boot is a feature of UEFI (Unified Extensible Firmware Interface) that prevents unauthorized software from running during the boot process. Secure Boot verifies the digital signature of the boot loader and the operating system, and only allows them to run if they are signed by a trusted authority. However, Secure Boot can also prevent some legitimate software, such as firmware updates, from running if they are not signed or recognized by the system. Therefore, the technician may need to disable Secure Boot in order to install a firmware update for the system board UEFI from a USB key³⁴. The other features are not likely to interfere with the firmware update, unless they are misconfigured or incompatible with the USB key.

NEW QUESTION # 838

While using a popular videoconferencing program, the user selects a webcam, but the software is unable to open the webcam. The webcam was working the previous day.

Which of the following should be done to address this issue?

- A. Adjust the conference software to a compatible resolution.
- B. Close other video software and retry.
- C. Switch the video from the webcam to "conference" mode.
- D. Reseat or replace the webcam.

Answer: B

Explanation:

One possible solution to address the issue of a webcam not working with a videoconferencing program is to close other video software and retry (option A). It's possible that another video software program is currently using the webcam and preventing the videoconferencing program from accessing it. By closing any other video software that may be running on the computer, the user can ensure that the webcam is available for use by the videoconferencing program.

NEW QUESTION # 839

A user keeps a company-provided camera's battery charger plugged into a docking station at a desk. Company policy requires that USB devices be identified and approved by installed peripheral security software. A technician is unable to add a unique identifier to the battery charger's security software. Which of the following should the technician do?

- A. Provide a USB to AC adapter for the battery charger.
- B. Disable the peripheral security software for this user only.
- C. Add a powered USB hub to the docking station.
- D. Replace the battery charger with a USB device that has a unique identifier.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The problem in this scenario is that the battery charger is not a USB device, but a device that plugs into a USB port to draw power. Therefore, it does not have a unique identifier that can be recognized by the peripheral security software, which is designed to prevent unauthorized USB devices from accessing the company's network or data. The security software cannot add the battery charger to its whitelist, and may block its power supply or generate alerts.

NEW QUESTION # 840

A customer's phone no longer charges fully. The phone only charges to 67% and then stops. Which of the following should be replaced to resolve this issue?

- A. The SD card
- B. The charger
- C. The battery
- D. The phone

Answer: C

Explanation:

The correct answer is C. The battery.

The battery is the component that stores and provides electrical power to the phone. The battery can degrade over time and lose its capacity to hold a full charge. This can cause the phone to stop charging at a certain percentage and run out of power faster. To resolve this issue, the battery should be replaced with a new one that is compatible with the phone model and manufacturer.

To replace the battery, the customer may need to follow different steps depending on the type of phone and battery. Some phones have removable batteries that can be easily accessed by opening the back cover of the phone and sliding out the old battery. Other phones have non-removable batteries that are sealed inside the phone and require special tools and skills to open the phone and disconnect the old battery. In this case, the customer may need to contact the phone manufacturer or a professional service center for assistance.

NEW QUESTION # 841

A technician is replacing the power supply in a computer. Which of the following safety measures should the technician take to protect the computer?

- A. Wear protective eyewear.
- B. Wear gloves.
- C. Wear an antistatic wrist strap.
- D. Minimize the use of tools.

Answer: C

Explanation:

When replacing a power supply in a computer, wearing an antistatic wrist strap is crucial to prevent static electricity from damaging the computer components. Static electricity can easily damage sensitive electronic components within the computer; therefore, using an antistatic wrist strap helps to ground the technician, mitigating the risk of electrostatic discharge. The other options provide general safety but do not address the primary concern of electrostatic discharge in this context.
