NEW QUESTION # 54

Which configuration allows you to use a script to coalesce data in Import Sets?

- A. Single-field coalesce
- B. Multiple-field coalesce
- C. No coalesce
- D. Conditional coalesce

Answer: D

Explanation:

In ServiceNow Import Sets, coalescing is the process of matching existing records to avoid duplicate entries when importing data. Conditional coalesce is the only method that allows using a script to determine if records should be updated or inserted.

Types of Coalescing in Import Sets:

Single-field Coalesce (Incorrect ☐)

Uses one field to determine if a record exists.

If a match is found, the record is updated; otherwise, a new record is created.

Example: Using email as a coalesce field when importing user data.

Multiple-field Coalesce (Incorrect ☐)

Uses multiple fields to find a match.

If all specified fields match, the record is updated. Otherwise, a new record is created.

Example: Matching First Name + Last Name + Email.

No Coalesce (Incorrect ☐)

Every import creates a new record, regardless of whether a similar record exists.

Conditional Coalesce (Correct ☐)

Allows using a script to define custom logic for identifying records to update.

This is the only coalescing method that supports scripting.

Example:

A script can check if either email or employee ID exists, and if neither exist, create a new record.
