Scrum Professional Scrum Product Owner I Sample Questions (Q62-Q67):

NEW QUESTION # 62

What are two effective ways for the Scrum Team to make non-functional requirements visible?
(choose the best two answers)

- A. Put them on a separate list on the Scrum board, available for all to see.
- B. Run the integration and regression tests before the end of the Sprint, and capture the open work for the Sprint Backlog of the next Sprint.
- C. Add them to the Definition of Done so the work is taken care of every Sprint.
- D. Add them to the Product Backlog to ensure transparency.

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

Non-functional requirements are the criteria that define the quality, performance, security, usability, and other aspects of a product¹. They are often implicit or assumed, but they are important to make visible and explicit, as they affect the value and satisfaction of the product². One effective way to make non-functional requirements visible is to add them to the Product Backlog, which is an ordered list of everything that is known to be needed in the product³^[3]. By adding non-functional requirements to the Product Backlog, the Product Owner and the Developers can prioritize, refine, and estimate them, and make them transparent to the stakeholders⁴. Another effective way to make non-functional requirements visible is to add them to the Definition of Done, which is a shared understanding of what it means for work to be complete, and ensures transparency of the quality of the work done⁵. By adding non-functional requirements to the Definition of Done, the Developers can ensure that every Product Backlog item and Increment meets the expected quality standards, and that the work is taken care of every Sprint.

NEW QUESTION # 65

Scrum combines four formal events for inspection and adaptation within a containing event, the Sprint.

- A. FALSE
- B. TRUE

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 66

Which topics should be discussed in the Sprint Review?

(choose the best answer)

- A. The Scrum process, and how it was used during the Sprint.
- B. Coding and engineering practices.
- C. All of the above.
- D. The product Increment.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The main topic of discussion is the product Increment, which is the sum of all the Product Backlog items completed during a Sprint and the value of the increments of all previous Sprints¹. The product Increment is demonstrated and inspected by the attendees, and feedback is collected to inform the next Sprint Planning². The Sprint Review may also include other topics, such as the Product Backlog, the Product Goal, the market conditions, the budget, and the timeline, but the product Increment is the essential topic¹²³⁴. The Scrum process, and how it was used during the Sprint, is not a topic for the Sprint Review, but rather for the Sprint Retrospective, which is a separate event where the Scrum Team inspects and adapts its way of working¹. Coding and engineering practices are also not relevant for the Sprint Review, as they are internal aspects of the Development Team that do not affect the value of the product Increment¹. Therefore, the correct answer is C. The product Increment.
