- B. RIP routes are redistributed to OSPF without any changes.

- D. R1 adds one to the metric for RIP learned routes before redistributing to OSPF.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 359

Refer to the exhibit.

When the FastEthernet0/1 goes down, the route to 172.29.0.0/16 via 192.168.253.2 is not installed in the RIB.

Which action resolves the issue?

- A. Configure feasible distance greater than the successor's feasible distance.
- B. Configure reported distance greater than the feasible distance
- C. Configure feasible distance greater than the reported distance
- D. Configure reported distance greater than the successor's feasible distance.

Answer: C

Explanation:

From the exhibit, we notice network 172.29.0.0/16 was learned via two routes:

+ From 192.168.254.2 with FD = 307200 and AD = 281600

+ From 192.168.253.2 with FD = 410200 and AD = 352300

The first route is installed into the RIB as the successor route because of lower FD.

When the first route fails, router will not use the second route as it does not satisfy the feasibility condition.

The feasibility condition states that, the Advertised Distance (AD, also called the reported distance) of a route must be lower than the feasible distance of the current successor route.
