NEW QUESTION # 458
A developer is asked to implement an infrastructure pipeline within the organization. To implement the infrastructure pipeline, the developer must identify the methods that are required for storing and working with credentials, such as API key, usernames, and passwords. Which two methods must be used? (Choose two.)

- A. Store the secrets in a vars file, and encrypt and store in a version control system.
- B. Store the secrets in a text file on your local machine.
- C. Inject the secrets into the pipeline at runtime.
- D. Implement a secret store, such as Vault.
- E. Use SHA-1 hashing and store in a version control system.

Answer: C,D

Explanation:
To securely handle credentials, secrets should not be stored directly in version control systems or on local machines. Instead, they should be injected at runtime (C), ensuring they are only available when needed, and a secret management solution like Vault (D) should be implemented to securely store and manage sensitive data like API keys and passwords.
