NEW QUESTION # 53

In the context of IBM MQ security, what mechanism provides message-level protection to ensure confidentiality and integrity when messages traverse untrusted networks?

- A. Access control lists configured in the operating system
- B. Channel initiators running in privileged mode
- C. Channel exit programs for user authentication
- D. SSL/TLS-enabled channels for encryption

Answer: D

Explanation:

SSL/TLS secures communication channels by encrypting data, maintaining confidentiality and integrity of messages while they travel across untrusted networks.

NEW QUESTION # 54

When multiple applications need to process the same incoming message independently without interfering with each other, which IBM MQ design ensures that each application receives a separate copy of the message and can process it at its own pace while maintaining overall system efficiency?

- A. Clustered local queues with round-robin distribution
- B. Temporary queues with message duplication scripts
- C. Point-to-point single queue processing
- D. Publish/Subscribe model with durable topic subscriptions

Answer: D

Explanation:

The Publish/Subscribe model allows multiple subscribers to get independent copies of messages. Durable subscriptions ensure messages are retained until each subscriber processes them, supporting independent application workflows.

NEW QUESTION # 55

In IBM MQ, when building a mission-critical airline reservation system where every booking message must be processed in strict order of arrival and must survive hardware crashes, which configuration provides both ordering guarantees and durability of messages?

- A. Configuring persistent messages with FIFO ordering and queue manager recovery logs
- B. Implementing publish/subscribe model with non-durable subscribers for faster throughput
- C. Relying on application-level retries without MQ persistence
- D. Using non-persistent queues with high-speed network connections

Answer: A

Explanation:

Persistent messages combined with recovery logs ensure that messages survive crashes, while FIFO ordering guarantees that booking transactions are processed in the correct sequence.

NEW QUESTION # 56

During system design, administrators must decide between persistent and non-persistent messages. Which business scenario would most critically require persistent messaging instead of non-persistent to ensure no data loss?

- A. Real-time chat notifications where performance outweighs durability
- B. Streaming live stock ticker updates where old values quickly lose relevance
- C. Financial transaction records that must survive crashes and be processed reliably
- D. Periodic system heartbeats that are useful only in real-time

Answer: C

Explanation:

Persistent messaging is essential for scenarios like financial transactions, where messages must not be lost and must be delivered even after system restarts.

In IBM MQ, which system-provided feature helps administrators automatically detect and remove inactive client connections that have not exchanged data for a specific period, thereby preventing resource leakage and ensuring efficient system performance?

- A. Automatic Cleanup Agent
- B. Connection Ping Service
- C. Channel Keepalive
- D. Heartbeat Interval
