IBM watsonx Generative AI Engineer - Associate Sample Questions (Q72-Q77):

NEW QUESTION # 72

You are optimizing a Generative AI model for a business application where cost savings are a priority.

Which of the following modifications to the model's parameters will most effectively reduce the overall generation cost while minimizing the loss of output quality?

- A. Reduce the number of layers in the neural network during inference.
- B. Decrease the model's context window size.
- C. Set a lower value for the top-p (nucleus sampling) parameter.
- D. Set a lower value for the frequency penalty parameter.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 73

Which of the following best describes the process of large-scale iterative alignment tuning in the context of customizing LLMs with InstructLab?

- A. A single training run of the model on a dataset to generate better predictions for a fixed number of prompts
- B. Fine-tuning the model exclusively on binary classification tasks to improve its generalization on all other tasks
- C. Direct training of the model on an expanded version of the dataset, without adjusting prompts or training tasks
- D. Repeated fine-tuning of a model using reinforcement learning, focusing on aligning its outputs with human preferences across a diverse set of tasks

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 74

In the context of Tuning Studio in IBM watsonx, what is one of the key benefits of using Compute Unit Hours (CUHs) during the fine-tuning process?

- A. It allows for the precise allocation of computational resources to manage budget constraints.
- B. It limits the number of model versions stored, improving system performance.
- C. It provides real-time feedback on model deployment success rates.
- D. It reduces the time required to train models by lowering the accuracy threshold.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 75

You have just finished a prompt tuning experiment for a large language model (LLM) to optimize its output for generating customer support summaries. The tuning results show that while the accuracy of the generated summaries is high (95%), the response time for generating them has significantly increased. The experiment data suggests that increasing the maximum token length during tuning led to better quality summaries but with slower generation.

Which parameter should you adjust to improve the model's response time without sacrificing too much summary quality?

- A. Decrease the number of epochs
- B. Decrease the maximum token length
- C. Change the decoding strategy from beam search to greedy decoding
- D. Increase the batch size

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 76

You are tasked with generating synthetic data for fine-tuning a large language model (LLM) using the IBM Watsonx User Interface. You want to generate relevant training samples to improve the model's accuracy in a text classification task.

Which action should you prioritize to generate high-quality synthetic data using the interface?

- A. Avoid using domain-specific prompts to keep the synthetic data unbiased and more generalizable.
- B. Customize prompt templates to closely mimic the structure and format of the original training data.
- C. Choose a diverse set of prompts that span different domains unrelated to the original dataset.
- D. Select only a few generic prompts to generate the largest volume of data possible, ensuring variety.

Answer: B
