NEW QUESTION # 92

Moving average forecasting methods are best when demand shows:

- A. high random variation.
- B. a clear trend.
- C. a cyclical pattern.
- D. consistent seasonality.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Moving average forecasting methods are best when demand shows high random variation, as they help to smooth out the noise and capture the underlying level of demand. Moving average methods use the average of the most recent observations as the forecast for the next period. They assign equal weights to all observations in the average, and drop the oldest observation when a new one becomes available. Moving average methods are not suitable for demand patterns that show a clear trend, consistent seasonality, or a cyclical pattern, as they cannot capture these components of demand. For these patterns, more sophisticated methods such as exponential smoothing or regression are needed. #### NEW QUESTION # 94

A company has a demand for 30 units of A, 40 units of B, and 50 units of C. These products are scheduled to run daily in batches of 10 as follows: ABC, ABC, ABC, CBC. What is this scheduling technique called?

- A. Line balancing
- B. Synchronized
- C. Matrix
- D. Mixed-model

Answer: D

Explanation:

Mixed-model scheduling is a technique that allows multiple products to be produced on the same assembly line without changeovers, and then sequences those products in a way that smoothes the demand for upstream components<sup>12</sup>. In this case, the company is using mixed-model scheduling to produce three different products (A, B, and C) on the same line, and then alternating them in a pattern that minimizes the variation in the workload and the inventory levels. The other options are not correct because:

* Matrix scheduling is a technique that assigns tasks to workers based on their skills and availability<sup>3</sup>.

* Synchronized scheduling is a technique that coordinates the production and delivery of materials and components to match the demand of the final assembly<sup>4</sup>.

* Line balancing is a technique that distributes the workload evenly among the workers or machines on a production line<sup>5</sup>.
