ISA/IEC 62443 Cybersecurity Fundamentals Specialist Sample Questions (Q159-Q164):

NEW QUESTION # 159

If an asset owner wants to demonstrate compliance with ISA/IEC 62443-2-1 requirements during an external audit, which type of evidence would be MOST appropriate?

- A. Anecdotal reports from employees about security practices
- B. Marketing materials describing the company's commitment to security
- C. Documentation verifying use and configuration of technologies
- D. Financial investment records in cybersecurity tools only

Answer: C

Explanation:

ISA/IEC 62443-2-1 requires objective, verifiable evidence of cybersecurity controls during audits and assessments.

Step 1: Evidence-based verification

Auditors assess whether required processes and technical controls are implemented and effective.

Documentation such as configurations, procedures, logs, and policies provides verifiable proof.

Step 2: Why documentation matters

Written records demonstrate consistency, repeatability, and governance-key goals of the standard.

Step 3: Why other options fail

Financial spending does not prove control effectiveness. Anecdotes are subjective. Marketing materials are not evidence.

Thus, documentation verifying use and configuration of technologies is the correct evidence.

NEW QUESTION # 160

What does the expression SL-T (BPCS Zone) vector {2 2 0 1 3 1 3} represent?

- A. The SL values for a specific zone's foundational requirements
- B. A qualitative risk assessment method
- C. A single protection factor for all FRs
- D. The FR values for a specific zone's security level

Answer: A

Explanation:

ISA/IEC 62443 defines Security Level vectors to express Target Security Levels across the seven Foundational Requirements (FRs).

Step 1: SL-T definition

SL-T represents the Target Security Level determined from risk assessment.

Step 2: Vector meaning

Each number in the vector corresponds to the required SL for a specific FR (IAC, UC, SI, DC, RDF, TRE, RA).

Step 3: Zone-specific application

The vector is applied to a defined zone (e.g., BPCS), allowing granular security specification.

Thus, the vector represents SL values for a specific zone's foundational requirements.

NEW QUESTION # 161

Which of the following provides the overall conceptual basis in the design of an appropriate security program?

- A. Zone model
- B. Reference model
- C. Reference architecture
- D. Asset model

Answer: B

Explanation:

The reference model provides the overall conceptual basis for designing an appropriate security program. The ISA/IEC 62443-1-1 standard introduces the reference model to explain the structure, concepts, and relationships within an industrial automation and control system (IACS). It establishes the foundation for applying zones and conduits and for understanding security levels and how assets interact. This model is the cornerstone for implementing other architectural and technical security controls.

Reference: ISA/IEC 62443-1-1:2007, Section 4.2, "Reference Model"; also see Figure 1 in 62443-1-1.

NEW QUESTION # 162

In terms of availability requirements, how do IACS and IT differ?

- A. Continuous operation is expected in IT while scheduled operation is sufficient for IACS.
- B. IACS tolerates occasional failures while IT does not.
- C. Rebooting is never acceptable in IT but tolerated in IACS.
- D. Both IACS and IT have the same availability requirements.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The ISA/IEC 62443 standards explain that continuous operation is often required in IT systems (such as data centers and online services), but for IACS environments, scheduled operation (for example, planned maintenance windows) is typically sufficient. IACS systems may accept limited downtime for maintenance, but require high availability during production runs. Reference: ISA/IEC 62443-1-1:2007, Section 4.4.4 ("Availability in IACS and IT contexts"); Table 7 (Comparison of IT and IACS requirements).

NEW QUESTION # 163

According to ISA/IEC TR 62443-1-5, which documents can be referenced when creating a security profile?

- A. Only ISA/IEC 62443-1-1 and 1-2
- B. Any cybersecurity standard outside the ISA/IEC 62443 series
- C. Only ISA/IEC 62443-3-3 and 4-1
- D. ISA/IEC 62443-2-1, 2-4, 3-3, 4-1, and 4-2

Answer: D

Explanation:

ISA/IEC TR 62443-1-5 provides guidance on developing and using security profiles to represent the security requirements of IACS systems. These profiles reference detailed technical and procedural requirements drawn from multiple documents in the 62443 series.

"The creation of security profiles should leverage relevant requirements and foundational elements from:

ISA/IEC 62443-2-1 (Security Program Requirements for IACS Asset Owners) ISA/IEC 62443-2-4 (Requirements for IACS Service Providers) ISA/IEC 62443-3-3 (System Security Requirements and Security Levels) ISA/IEC 62443-4-1 (Secure Product Development Lifecycle Requirements) ISA/IEC 62443-4-2 (Technical Security Requirements for IACS Components)" - ISA/IEC TR 62443-1-5:2018, Clause 5.2

This ensures a comprehensive and layered security profile based on technical, system, and organizational controls.
