CompTIA A+ Certification Exam: Core 1 Sample Questions (Q332-Q337):

NEW QUESTION # 332
A technician is troubleshooting a computer that has random BSOD alerts and intermittently freezes during normal use. Performance degrades as the day goes on. No new software or hardware changes have been implemented. Freezing occurs under performance-intensive operations. Which of the following hardware components is most likely at fault?

- A. Video card
- B. RAM module
- C. TPM
- D. HDD

Answer: B

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Step-by-Step Explanation:
Random BSODs (Blue Screen of Death), intermittent freezing, and degraded performance under load are common symptoms of failing or faulty RAM (Random Access Memory). Here's the reasoning:

RAM Module (Correct Answer):

Faulty or failing RAM can cause random BSODs due to memory errors when the system attempts to read or write to corrupted memory locations.

Intermittent freezing, especially under performance-intensive operations, can occur because the CPU relies heavily on RAM for active processing tasks.

Over time, heat generated during usage can exacerbate RAM instability, leading to progressively worse performance throughout the day.

Solution: The technician should run a memory diagnostic tool, such as Windows Memory Diagnostic or MemTest86, to confirm if the RAM is at fault.

Incorrect Options:

A: Video Card: A faulty video card can cause graphical glitches, screen artifacts, or crashes, but it is unlikely to cause system-wide performance degradation and random freezing under normal operations unless the issue is specific to GPU-intensive tasks (e.g., gaming or video rendering).

B: HDD: A failing hard drive can cause system slowdowns and freezing, but it typically produces other symptoms such as read/write errors, boot failures, or clicking sounds. HDD issues do not usually cause BSODs unless critical system files are corrupted.

D: TPM (Trusted Platform Module): A TPM is a hardware-based security module used for encryption and secure authentication. It does not affect performance or cause BSODs or freezing under normal operation.

Key Takeaway:

The symptoms described (random BSODs, intermittent freezing, and degraded performance under load) are most likely caused by faulty or failing RAM. Memory diagnostic tools should be used to confirm the issue.

NEW QUESTION # 333

A technician is troubleshooting a connectivity issue on a network computer. The technician runs ipconfig in a command prompt and receives the following IP address:169.254.0.6. Which of the following is most likely the type of IP address being assigned?

- A. Static assignment
- B. Dynamic assignment
- C. Self-assignment
- D. DHCP reservation assignment

Answer: C

Explanation:

An IP address starting with169.254.x.xis aself-assigned address(also calledAPIPA- Automatic Private IP Addressing). It's used when a client device cannot contact a DHCP server. This address allows limited communication on the local network segment butno internet access.

Option A:DHCP reservations assign specific IPs from the DHCP server - they don't result in APIPA.

Option B:Dynamic assignment from DHCP assigns valid IPs in the proper subnet, not 169.254.x.x.

Option D:Static IPs are manually set and would not fall in the 169.254.x.x range unless set incorrectly.

NEW QUESTION # 334

A technician needs to move a workstation to a different logical network segment. Which of the following technologies should the technician use?

- A. VLAN
- B. DNS
- C. DHCP
- D. VPN

Answer: A

Explanation:

AVLAN (Virtual LAN)is used to logically segment a network without requiring physical separation. It enables grouping devices based on function or department regardless of their physical location.

Option A (DHCP):Assigns IP addresses dynamically but doesn't create network segments.
Option C (DNS):Resolves domain names to IP addresses, not used for network segmentation.
Option D (VPN):Provides secure remote access but does not relate to logical segmentation within a local network.
CompTIA A+ Core 1 Exam Objective Reference:
Objective 2.3: Explain common logical networking concepts.

NEW QUESTION # 335

A technician is setting up a new multifunction device to be used over a shared network connection. Copier functions need to be restricted to only office employees. Which of the following should the technician perform after configuring the device to use a print server that exists on the domain?

- A. SMB configuration
- B. SMTP implementation
- C. User authentication
- D. Firmware update

Answer: C

Explanation:
User authentication allows access to device functions (like printing and copying) to be restricted to authorized personnel. This is typically implemented on networked multifunction devices for security and auditing.

NEW QUESTION # 336

Which of the following technologies best allows a phone to connect to a point-of-sale terminal for wireless payments?

- A. NFC
- B. Wi-Fi
- C. Cellular
- D. Bluetooth

Answer: A

Explanation:
Near-field communication (NFC) is a short-distance wireless communication method widely used in mobile payment systems like Apple Pay and Google Pay. Simply placing the device near a compatible terminal initiates the payment process.
