NEW QUESTION # 223

What is a component of the first stage of an application development CI/CD pipeline?

- A. triggering of the automated testing phase
- B. developer writing the initial lines of code
- C. triggering of the automated build phase
- D. commitment and pushing of code into a version control system

Answer: D

Explanation:

The first stage of a CI/CD (Continuous Integration/Continuous Deployment) pipeline typically involves developers committing and pushing code into a version control system (VCS) such as Git. This stage sets the foundation for subsequent automated processes.

* Version Control System (VCS): A VCS allows multiple developers to work on code simultaneously, track changes, and manage versions.

* Initial Commit: The act of committing code means saving changes to the local repository.

* Push to Repository: Pushing code sends the committed changes to a remote repository, making them available for the CI/CD pipeline to trigger automated processes such as building and testing.
