- A. To make the automated process available for production use
- B. To tram employees on how to use UiPath software
- C. To test UiPath software for performance and reliability
- D. To install and configure UiPath software on a computer

Answer: A

Explanation:
The primary goal of deploying automation in RPA is to make the automated process available for production use. This involves automating tasks and workflows to increase efficiency, reduce errors, and free up human workers for more strategic tasks, thereby enhancing productivity and operational effectiveness across the organization.References: UiPath Academy and learning materials.

NEW QUESTION # 125
When deciding the priority of processes from a pipeline, what is the order in which the development should be done'?
Instructions: Drag and Drop the items on the left to the boxes on the right in a correct order

Answer:

Explanation:
Explanation:
The correct order for prioritizing processes from a pipeline for development is:
* Quick Wins
* Must-Do Improvements
* Low-Hanging Fruit
* Long-Term Improvements
This prioritization strategy is designed to balance immediate impact with strategic development. Quick Wins are prioritized first because they typically require minimal effort and provide immediate benefits. Must-Do Improvements follow, as these are necessary changes that may require more effort but are essential for the processLow-Hanging Fruit are tasks that are relatively easy to implement and provide value, while Long-Term Improvements are placed last as they often involve significant changes that yield benefits over a longer period123.
References: The prioritization logic is based on common project management practices and is supported by discussions in the UiPath

Community Forum, where similar strategies are recommended for process development and automation123.
