Antwort: C,D,F

Begründung:

https://docs.oracle.com/cd/B28359_01/server.111/b28310/tables011.htm#ADMIN01511 When you drop a table, the database does not immediately remove the space associated with the table. The database renames the table and places it and any associated objects in a recycle bin, where, in case the table was dropped in error, it can be recovered at a later time. This feature is called Flashback Drop, and the FLASHBACK TABLE statement is used to restore the table.

C has to be CORRECT despite it is not fully clear, anyway Recovery Advisor can be used when database is even NOT mounted, hence it is CLOSED while instance is STARTED.

D is NOT correct because of ONLY word. Change Failure can CLOSE or CHANGE PRIORITY.
