NEW QUESTION # 725

In which of the following programs is it MOST important to include the collection of security process data?

- A. Security continuous monitoring
- B. Quarterly access reviews
- C. Business continuity testing
- D. Annual security training

Answer: A

Explanation:

Section: Security Assessment and Testing

NEW QUESTION # 726

Which of the following can be used as a covert channel?

- A. Storage and classification.
- B. Storage and low bits.
- C. Storage and permissions.
- D. Storage and timing.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Those are the proper elements, you can use these two to achieve a covert channel. Low bits is not a term related to covert channels. Permissions are related to authentication, they do not achieve what the question wants. Also, classification is could not selected as a correct choice.

Check your official CISSP documentation to see what can be used as a covert channel.

"An active variation on eavesdropping is called Covert Channel eavesdropping, which consists of using a hidden unauthorized network connection to communicate unauthorized information. A Covert Storage Channel operates by writing information to storage by one process and then reading by using another process from a different security level. A Covert Timing Channel signals information to another process by modulating its own resource use to affect the response time of another."

NEW QUESTION # 727

Which of the following refers to the number of columns in a table?

- A. Degree
- B. Schema
- C. Cardinality
- D. Relation

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 728

A financial organization that works according to agile principles has developed a new application for their external customer base to request a line of credit. A security analyst has been asked to assess the security risk of the minimum viable product (MVP). Which is the MOST important activity the analyst should assess?

- A. The software had been branded according to corporate standards,
- B. The software has been signed off for release by the product owner.
- C. The software has been code reviewed.
- D. The software has the correct functionality.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 729

After acquiring the latest security updates, what must be done before deploying to production systems?

- A. Use tools to detect missing system patches
- B. Subscribe to notifications for vulnerabilities
- C. Install the patches on a test system
- D. Assess the severity of the situation

Answer: C

Explanation:

After acquiring the latest security updates, the best practice is to install the patches on a test system before deploying them to the production systems. This is to ensure that the patches are compatible with the system configuration and do not cause any adverse effects or conflicts with the existing applications or services. The test system should be isolated from the production environment and should have the same or similar specifications and settings as the production system.

* A. Use tools to detect missing system patches is not something that must be done after acquiring the latest security updates, but rather something that must be done before acquiring the security updates.

This is to identify the current patch level and the patch requirements of the system.

* C. Subscribe to notifications for vulnerabilities is not something that must be done after acquiring the latest security updates, but rather something that must be done as part of the ongoing patch management process. This is to stay informed of the latest security threats and vulnerabilities and the corresponding patches or mitigations.

* D. Assess the severity of the situation is not something that must be done after acquiring the latest security updates, but rather something that must be done before acquiring the security updates. This is to prioritize the patching activities based on the risk and impact of the vulnerabilities.
