NEW QUESTION # 394

A company uses AWS Organizations with a single OU named Production to manage multiple accounts. All accounts are members of the Production OU. Administrators use deny list SCPs in the root of the organization to manage access to restricted services. The company recently acquired a new business unit and invited the new unit's existing AWS account to the organization. Once onboarded, the administrators of the new business unit discovered that they are not able to update existing AWS Config rules to meet the company's policies.

Which option will allow administrators to make changes and continue to enforce the current policies without introducing additional long-term maintenance?

- A. Remove the organization's root SCPs that limit access to AWS Config. Create AWS Service Catalog products for the company's standard AWS Config rules and deploy them throughout the organization, including the new account.
- B. Convert the organization's root SCPs from deny list SCPs to allow list SCPs to allow the required services only. Temporally apply an SCP to the organization's root that allows AWS Config actions for principals only in the new account.
- C. Create a temporary OU named Onboarding for the new account. Apply an SCP to the Onboarding OU to allow AWS Config actions. Move the organization's root SCP to the Production OU. Move the new account to the Production OU when adjustments to AWS Config are complete.
- D. Create a temporary OU named Onboarding for the new account. Apply an SCP to the Onboarding OU to allow AWS Config actions. Move the new account to the Production OU when adjustments to AWS Config are complete.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 395

A Solutions Architect is designing a solution to monitor weather changes by the minute. The frontend application is hosted on Amazon EC2 instances. The backend must be scalable to a virtually unlimited size, and data retrieval must occur with minimal latency.

Which AWS service should the Architect use to store the data and achieve these requirements?

- A. Amazon RDS
- B. Amazon EBS
- C. Amazon S3
- D. Amazon DynamoDB

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

Whenever you see a question that says "data retrieval must occur with minimal latency" and you see S3 and DynamoDB in the options, always choose DynamoDB (9 out of 10 times). There is nothing in this question that points to S3 as the solution but if you still have doubts check the AWS Certification Exam Practice Question in the link below that says "A meteorological system monitors 600 temperature gauges, obtaining temperature samples every minute and saving each sample to a DynamoDB table".

NEW QUESTION # 396

What does Amazon CloudFormation provide?

- A. A template to map network resources for Amazon Web Services.
- B. A templated resource creation for Amazon Web Services.
- C. None of these.
- D. The ability to setup Autoscaling for Amazon EC2 instances.

Answer: B
