- B. IT resource utilization reporting procedures.
- C. principles for the IT strategy.
- D. applicable key goals.

Answer: D

Explanation:

According to the CGEIT exam guide, IT resource management is the process of planning, acquiring, allocating, monitoring and optimizing the IT resources of an enterprise to support its strategy, objectives and goals. To evaluate IT resource management, it is most important to define the applicable key goals that the IT resources are expected to achieve or contribute to. These key goals should be aligned with the enterprise's vision, mission and values, as well as the stakeholder needs and expectations. The key goals should also be specific, measurable, achievable, relevant and time-bound (SMART), and should be communicated and agreed upon by all relevant parties. Defining the applicable key goals will help to assess the performance, value and impact of IT resource management, as well as to identify the gaps, issues and opportunities for improvement. The other options are not as important as defining the applicable key goals, as they are more related to the implementation and execution of IT resource management, rather than its evaluation. References: CGEIT Exam Candidate Guide, page 14. CGEIT Certification, IT Resource Management
