NEW QUESTION # 167

Halfway through a project, the sponsor states that the project is taking too long to complete. Which of the following should the project manager consult?

- A. Functional requirements
- B. Gantt chart
- C. Test results
- D. Maintenance window schedule

Answer: B

Explanation:

The project manager should consult a Gantt chart after the sponsor states that the project is taking too long to complete. A Gantt chart is a graphical tool that shows the schedule of a project, including the start and end dates, durations, dependencies, milestones, and progress of each task or activity. A Gantt chart can help to monitor and control the project timeline and identify any delays, variances, or issues that may affect the project completion.

NEW QUESTION # 168

- A. Resolution time
- B. Work breakdown structure
- C. Cost optimization
- D. Which of the following elements is part of the agreement?
- E. Issue list

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Resolution time is a standard component of a Service Level Agreement (SLA), defining the maximum time for addressing issues. SLAs are essential for managing client expectations and service performance, in line with CompTIA Project+ concepts of contract management.

NEW QUESTION # 169

Which of the following would most likely take place when a team reviews the backlog and presents the status of each task?

- A. Sprint planning
- B. Sprint review
- C. Sprint retrospective
- D. Daily Scrum

Answer: B

Explanation:

A Sprint Review involves reviewing the completed backlog items and presenting the work to stakeholders. This aligns with CompTIA Project+ agile practices, where a Sprint Review focuses on completed tasks and feedback.

NEW QUESTION # 170

A project manager is eager to define access requirements during the initiation phase of a project. Which of the following steps should the project manager perform first?

- A. Define the WBS.
- B. Manage the vendors.
- C. Develop a RAM.
- D. Assess the resource pool.

Answer: D

Explanation:

This answer is based on the best practice of defining access requirements in project management, which is to identify the roles, responsibilities, and permissions of the project team members and other stakeholders who need to access the project information, resources, and deliverables<sup>12</sup>. The first step in this process is to assess the resource pool, which is the availability and capability of the human resources that can be assigned to the project<sup>34</sup>. By assessing the resource pool, the project manager can determine the skills, experience, and security clearance of the potential project team members, as well as their reporting relationships, communication preferences, and expectations<sup>56</sup>. This information can help the project manager to define the access requirements for each role and stakeholder group, and to assign the appropriate level of access to the project data, documents, tools, and systems<sup>78</sup>. ### NEW QUESTION # 171

Although a project was successfully released into production a month ago, a project manager continues to receive project-related work. Which of the following is the reason for this issue?

- A. The project manager did not remove access.
- B. The project manager did not complete the project closure phase.
- C. The project is in the verification testing phase.
- D. The project manager did not release the resources.

Answer: B

Explanation:

If a project manager continues to receive project-related work after the project has been released into production, it suggests that the project closure phase was not completed properly. The project closure phase involves several activities, including ensuring that all project deliverables are accepted, documenting the lessons learned, releasing project resources, and formally closing the project. If these activities are not completed, the project can remain 'open' in a sense, leading to continued work and inquiries.

References = The answer is based on standard project management practices and the importance of the project closure phase as described in project management literature. For detailed information, please refer to the CompTIA Project+ Study Guide and other official CompTIA resources. Specific references to the closure phase can be found in the CompTIA Project+ PK0-005 Cert Guide<sup>1</sup> and the CompTIA Project+ Certification Exam Objectives<sup>2</sup>.
