- C. control plane forwarding
- D. data plane forwarding

Answer: D

Explanation:

This is because VXLAN is a network virtualization technology that encapsulates Layer 2 frames in UDP headers and allows them to be transported over Layer 3 networks. VXLAN is used in Cisco SD-Access to create virtual networks that span across multiple physical locations and devices. VXLAN performs the data plane forwarding function, which is responsible for moving packets from one point to another based on the destination address. - A. The JSON payload contains the incorrect UUID
- B. Authentication has failed
- C. The URI string is incorrect
- D. The token has expired.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The issue indicated by POSTMAN in the exhibit is related to an expired token. When interacting with Cisco DNA Center API, a token is required for authentication purposes. This token has a limited lifespan for security reasons and must be renewed periodically. If a request is made with an expired token, the API will not authenticate the request, and an error will be returned, indicating that the token is no longer valid.
