CompTIA Data+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q256-Q261):

NEW QUESTION # 256

You are working with a dataset and need to swap the values in rows with those in columns.

What action do you need to perform?

- A. Recording
- B. Aggregation.
- C. Filtering.
- D. Transposition.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

Transpose creates a new data file in which the rows and columns in the original data file are transposed so that cases (rows) become variables and variables (columns) become cases. Transpose automatically creates new variable names and displays a list of the new variable names.

Transposing data is useful for data analysis. At times, we have to pull data from various files with different formats for analysis and preparing reports. In such circumstances, we may have to transpose some data from one file to the other. In excel, we can transpose data in multiple ways.

NEW QUESTION # 257

Which of the following is the best reason for removing data outliers?

- A. Data is duplicated in the whole range.
- B. Data varies significantly from others.
- C. Data is redundant in the table.
- D. Data is missing from the table.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation:

Data outliers are observations that deviate markedly from other observations in the dataset. Handling outliers appropriately is crucial in data analysis to ensure the accuracy and reliability of insights derived from the data.

Option A: Data varies significantly from others.

* Rationale: Outliers are data points that differ significantly from other observations. They can skew statistical analyses, leading to misleading results. Removing or addressing outliers can help in achieving a more accurate representation of the data, ensuring that analyses and models are not unduly influenced by anomalous values.

NEW QUESTION # 258

Given the customer table below:

Which of the following chart types is the most appropriate to represent the average spending of active customers vs. inactive customers?

- A. Heat graph
- B. Line chart
- C. Pie chart
- D. Scatter plot

Answer: C

Explanation:

A Pie chart is the most suitable for representing the average spending of active customers versus inactive customers. Pie charts are effective for comparing parts of a whole, which makes them ideal for visually displaying the proportion of spend between two distinct groups. They are widely used to depict percentage distributions and are straightforward, allowing immediate analysis of the active vs. inactive customer spending distribution at a glance.

NEW QUESTION # 259

A data set for sales per month includes the following data:

Which of the following cleaning and profiling methods should be applied to the data set?

- A. Data type validation
- B. Duplicate data
- C. Data outliers
- D. Invalid data

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 260

Given the information in the following tables:

Which of the following describes merging these tables to create a master file that includes all transactions for both online and in-store sales?

- A. Data validation
- B. Data audit
- C. Data consolidation
- D. Data completeness

Answer: C
