- A. Databricks Filesystem
- B. Dashboards
- C. Repos
- D. Jobs

Answer: E

NEW QUESTION # 97

A data engineer has configured a Structured Streaming job to read from a table, manipulate the data, and then perform a streaming write into a new table.

The cade block used by the data engineer is below:

If the data engineer only wants the query to execute a micro-batch to process data every 5 seconds, which of the following lines of code should the data engineer use to fill in the blank?

- A. trigger(processingTime="5 seconds")
- B. trigger("5 seconds")
- C. trigger(once="5 seconds")
- D. trigger()
- E. trigger(continuous="5 seconds")

Answer: A

Explanation:

The processingTime option specifies a time-based trigger interval for fixed interval micro-batches. This means that the query will execute a micro-batch to process data every 5 seconds, regardless of how much data is available. This option is suitable for near-real time processing workloads that require low latency and consistent processing frequency. The other options are either invalid syntax (A, C), default behavior (B), or experimental feature (E). Which of the following is hosted completely in the control plane of the classic Databricks architecture?

- A. Databricks Filesystem
- B. JDBC data source
- C. Databricks web application
- D. Worker node
- E. Driver node

Answer: C

Explanation:

The Databricks web application is the user interface that allows you to create and manage workspaces, clusters, notebooks, jobs, and other resources. It is hosted completely in the control plane of the classic Databricks architecture, which includes the backend services that Databricks manages in your Databricks account. The other options are part of the compute plane, which is where your data is processed by compute resources such as clusters. The compute plane is in your own cloud account and network.
