CIPS Commercial Negotiation Sample Questions (Q192-Q197):

NEW QUESTION # 192

Different types of relationships impact commercial negotiations. At a negotiation, which one of the following sources would help to support leverage for the buyer?

- A. Legitimate power
- B. Friends power
- C. Personality power
- D. Powerful colleagues

Answer: A

Explanation:

Legitimate power derives from formal authority or position, giving the buyer leverage in negotiations. This power type is more effective in establishing credibility and enforcing terms, as highlighted in CIPS's framework for negotiation power sources, unlike informal sources like personality or friendship.

NEW QUESTION # 193

Buyers should have the ability to analyse the costs of their purchases not only for determining their impact to their organisation's cost but also for the purpose of reducing them during commercial negotiations to contribute to the profitability of their organisation. One way of analysing costs is to classify them into direct and indirect costs. Which ONE of the following is an explanation of 'direct costs'?

- A. Costs that are connected with materials and labour, excluding expenses used directly in manufacturing products
- B. Costs of labour and expenses incurred directly whether or not the production fluctuates owing to demand or downtime
- C. Costs of materials, labour, and other expenses that are directly identified with manufactured units of a product
- D. Costs that are only related to manufacturing firms where raw materials are directly converted into specific product units

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 194

Are tactical ploys only used in distributive approach?

- A. No, because tactical ploys will be more effective with integrative approach
- B. No, because tactical ploys strengthen the other party's position
- C. Yes, because tactical ploys will help to gain insights into the other party's interests
- D. Yes, because they will be irritants to long-term relationship

Answer: D

Explanation:

There are many tactics and ploys that can be used to persuade others, particularly those not trained in negotiation. But in general these tactics should be used with care, as they can backfire; and in situations where a long-term relationship is desired, they can be, if detected, become an irritant to TOP.

Tactics are particularly effective if and when you are dealing with untrained negotiators, in consumer's buying situation and in once-off encounter.

NEW QUESTION # 195

John suggests that a post-negotiation review must involve a meeting with all stakeholders as the most effective method. Is this statement correct?

- A. Yes, as it allows all stakeholders to be physically present
- B. No, John may only record what he believes is correct
- C. Yes, it allows stakeholders to blame procurement for failings
- D. No, there may be a more effective way to undertake the review

Answer: D

Explanation:

While stakeholder feedback is crucial, meetings are not always the most effective review method. Reviews may be better conducted through reports, surveys, or individual debriefs, depending on context. The key is to capture lessons learned, successes, and areas for improvement, and to record them for future negotiations.

Forcing all stakeholders into one meeting risks inefficiency or unproductive blame games. CIPS stresses structured reflection and documentation as best practice, ensuring organisational learning and preparation improvements.

NEW QUESTION # 196

At which stage in a negotiation would questions be asked to obtain missing information?

- A. The opening stage
- B. The bargaining stage
- C. The testing stage
- D. The proposing stage

Answer: C

Explanation:

There are 5 key phases of negotiation:

The opening phase: confirm understanding and get the issue on the table The testing phase: check assumption and confirm understanding The proposing phase: asking 'if' The bargaining phase: using tradeables The agreement and closing phase The testing could take the form of questions following a presentation by either side or questions on a tender or proposal document received by the buyer from the potential supplier. The testing phase is necessary to confirm that your approach and objectives are appropriate for the negotiation situation you now find yourself in. Careful listening, observation and interpretation of TOP's responses may give indication of the following:

Areas where TOP is willing and unwilling to make concessions

What factors or issues TOP places a high value on

If there are any non-commercial or emotional factors that may be pertinent TOP's underlying interests - why they are taking the position they are.
