Cisco Implementing Cisco Data Center AI Infrastructure Sample Questions (Q60-Q65):

NEW QUESTION # 60

What describes inference traffic patterns in AI deployments?

- A. eliminates the need for data preparation
- B. provides real-time decision making
- C. simplifies complex neural network architectures
- D. optimizes data storage solutions for data lakes

Answer: B

Explanation:

Inference traffic is associated with using a trained model to generate predictions or responses from new input data. In AI deployments, this commonly supports real-time or near-real-time decision making, such as classification, recommendations, detection, or automated responses.

NEW QUESTION # 61

An engineer notices excessive broadcast traffic inside a legacy AI server VLAN. Which technology should be implemented to reduce flooding and improve scalability?

- A. RIP
- B. GRE tunneling
- C. PAT
- D. VXLAN EVPN

Answer: D

Explanation:

VXLAN EVPN reduces unknown unicast and broadcast flooding by using control-plane learning with BGP EVPN. This improves scalability in modern AI data centers. RIP is outdated for large-scale fabrics, while PAT and GRE tunneling do not address broadcast domain limitations.

NEW QUESTION # 62

A server administrator must monitor the performance and utilization of GPUs in Cisco UCS servers running AI workloads. Which two metrics must be used in Cisco Intersight to accomplish these goals? (Choose two.)

- A. System CPU Utilization
- B. GPU Utilization
- C. Monitor
- D. Explorer
- E. GPU Performance

Answer: B,E

Explanation:

Cisco Intersight provides GPU-focused telemetry for UCS servers, including utilization and performance metrics. These measurements allow the administrator to monitor how heavily the GPUs are being used and whether the AI workload is receiving the expected GPU performance.

NEW QUESTION # 63

A network architect designs connectivity for a new Cisco AI POD operating in Intersight Managed Mode. To ensure high availability and aggregate bandwidth for external network traffic, a port channel must be established using multiple 100 GbE uplink ports on the fabric interconnects to connect to the upstream core switch infrastructure. Which specific policy, applied through the domain profile, must be modified to define and configure this port channel on the fabric interconnects for the desired uplink connectivity?

- A. Ethernet network group
- B. LAN connectivity policy
- C. network connectivity policy

- D. port policy

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Cisco Intersight Managed Mode, fabric interconnect port roles and uplink port channels are defined in the port policy associated with the UCS domain profile. Modifying the port policy allows the engineer to configure multiple 100 GbE uplink ports as a port channel for aggregated bandwidth and high availability toward the upstream network.

NEW QUESTION # 64

Server administrators receive reports of power utilization being near capacity across multiple UCS X-Series servers in the data center after a hardware upgrade. The chassis operates with six power supply units in redundant power mode. How can the administrator use additional power without impacting redundancy?

- A. Disable extended power capacity.
- B. Add more power supplies.
- C. Enable extended power capacity.
- D. Implement a power capping policy.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Extended power capacity allows a UCS X-Series chassis with six power supplies in redundant mode to make additional power available while still preserving redundancy. This is used when power demand increases after hardware upgrades and the administrator needs more usable power without changing the redundant power configuration.
