Huawei HCSA-Presales-Storage V4.0 Sample Questions (Q66-Q71):

NEW QUESTION # 66

RAID 0 is actually a mirroring technology.

- A. TRUE
- B. FALSE

Answer: B

Explanation:

This statement is false because RAID 0 and Mirroring (RAID 1) are fundamentally different concepts in Huawei storage technology. As defined in the Huawei technical manual, RAID 0 is "Striping." It breaks data into chunks and spreads them across multiple disks to increase performance. It has no redundancy.

"Mirroring" is the terminology specifically used for RAID 1. In a RAID 1 configuration, the system writes the exact same data to two separate physical disks simultaneously. This creates a 100% redundant copy (a mirror). If one disk fails, the other continues to provide data, ensuring zero downtime and no data loss. Huawei's RAID 2.0+ virtualization technology can implement striping and mirroring across different "chunks" or "extents" within a storage pool, but it maintains the technical distinction: RAID 0 is for performance through striping, while mirroring is for reliability through duplication. Therefore, characterizing RAID 0 as a mirroring technology is a technical inaccuracy.
