Salesforce Certified Heroku Architect Sample Questions (Q53-Q58):

NEW QUESTION # 53

Universal Containers (UC) uses Apache Kafka on Heroku to stream shipment inventory data in real time throughout the world. A Kafka topic is used to send messages with updates on the shipping container GPS coordinates as they are in transit. UC is using a Heroku Kafka basic-0 plan. The topic was provisioned with 8 partitions, 1 week of retention, and no compaction. The keys for the events are being assigned by Heroku Kafka, which means that they will be randomly distributed between the partitions.

UC has a single-dyno consumer application that persists the data to their Enterprise Data Warehouse (EDW).

Recently, they've been noticing data loss in the EDW.

What should an Architect with Kafka experience recommend?

- A. Upgrade to a larger Apache Kafka for Heroku plan, which has greater data capacity.
- B. Use Heroku Redis to store message receipt information to account for "at-least" once delivery, which will guarantee that messages are never processed more than once. Scale up the consumer dynos to match the number of partitions so that there is one process for each partition.

- C. Enable compaction on the topic to drop older messages, which will drop older messages with the same key.

Answer: B

- A. Define different process types for the Ruby script and the Go application in the app's Profile.
- B. Modify the Go buildpack to install Ruby, and run the script from the `_profile`
- C. Convert the Ruby release script to Go and execute it on application startup
- D. Use both Go and Ruby language buildpacks, and run the Ruby script with release phase

Answer: D

Explanation:

- There are many scenarios in which a single buildpack is not sufficient when building an application. This includes cases when you need to: Run a buildpack for each language your app uses For example, run a JavaScript buildpack for assets and a Ruby buildpack for your application Run a daemon process such as pgbouncer with your application.
