NEW QUESTION # 41

What is required to centrally administer a user's master record using Central User Administration? Note:
There are 3 correct answers to this question.

- A. An ALE distribution model
- B. An existing master record in the target client for the user
- C. An RFC destination to the target client
- D. An RFC destination to the target system
- E. An entry in transaction BD54 for the child system

Answer: A,C,E

Explanation:
Central User Administration (CUA) in SAP enables centralized management of user master records across multiple systems. To implement CUA, an ALE (Application Link Enabling) distribution model is required to define the data exchange between the CUA master system and child systems, ensuring user data is consistently distributed. An RFC (Remote Function Call) destination to the target client is necessary to establish a secure communication channel for transmitting user data to specific clients in the child systems. Additionally, an entry in transaction BD54 (Logical Systems) for the child system is needed to define the child system as a logical system in the CUA landscape, enabling it to receive user data. An RFC destination to the target system (not client-specific) is less precise, and an existing master record in the target client is not required, as CUA creates or updates these records centrally. These components ensure that CUA operates effectively, streamlining user administration while maintaining security and consistency across SAP systems.
