CompTIA Cloud+ (2025) Sample Questions (Q89-Q94):

NEW QUESTION # 89

A company uses containers stored in Docker Hub to deploy workloads (or its IaaS infrastructure). The development team releases changes to the containers several times per hour. Which of the following should a cloud engineer do to prevent the proprietary code from being exposed to third parties?

- A. Use IaC to deploy the IaaS infrastructure.

- B. Convert the containers to VMs.
- C. Use private repositories for the containers.
- D. Deploy the containers over SSH.

Answer: C

Explanation:

To prevent proprietary code from being exposed to third parties, a cloud engineer should use private repositories for the containers. Private repositories ensure that access to container images is restricted and controlled, unlike public repositories where images are accessible to anyone.

Reference: The concept of using private repositories for protecting proprietary code is part of cloud security best practices, which is covered under the Governance, Risk, Compliance, and Security domain of the CompTIA Cloud+ certification.

NEW QUESTION # 90

A cloud administrator is working on the deployment of an e-commerce website. The administrator evaluates the scaling methods to be implemented when seasonal or flash sales are launched.

Which of the following scaling approaches should the administrator use to best manage this scenario?

- A. Event
- B. Trending
- C. Scheduled
- D. Load

Answer: A

Explanation:

An event-based scaling approach is the best choice for handling seasonal or flash sales, where demand spikes unpredictably. This method automatically scales resources up or down in response to real-time demand triggers, such as increased user traffic or high transaction volumes. Unlike scheduled scaling, which follows a predefined schedule, event-driven scaling reacts dynamically to actual workload changes, ensuring optimal performance without over-provisioning resources.

NEW QUESTION # 91

A developer is deploying a new version of a containerized application. The DevOps team wants:

- * No disruption
- * No performance degradation
- * Cost-effective deployment
- * Minimal deployment time

Which of the following is the best deployment strategy given the requirements?

- A. In-place
- B. Rolling
- C. Blue-green
- D. Canary

Answer: C

Explanation:

The blue-green deployment strategy is the best given the requirements for no disruption, no performance degradation, cost-effective deployment, and minimal deployment time. It involves maintaining two identical production environments (blue and green), where one hosts the current application version and the other is used to deploy the new version. Once testing on the green environment is complete, traffic is switched from blue to green, ensuring a seamless transition with no downtime. References: Understanding various cloud deployment strategies, such as blue-green deployments, is essential for managing cloud environments effectively, as highlighted in the CompTIA Cloud+ objectives, to ensure smooth and efficient application updates.

NEW QUESTION # 92

A cloud engineer is running a latency-sensitive workload that must be resilient and highly available across multiple regions. Which of the following concepts best addresses these requirements?

- A. Stand-alone container
- B. Hardware passthrough
- C. Clustering
- D. Cloning

Answer: C

Explanation:

Clustering refers to the use of multiple servers/computers to form what appears to be a single system. This concept is key for achieving high availability and resilience, especially for latency-sensitive workloads. By distributing the workload across a cluster that spans multiple regions, the system can continue to operate even if one or more nodes fail, thus maintaining performance and availability. NEW QUESTION # 93

An organization wants to ensure its data is protected in the event of a natural disaster. To support this effort, the company has rented a colocation space in another part of the country. Which of the following disaster recovery practices can be used to best protect the data?

- A. Off-site
- B. Replication
- C. On-site
- D. Retention

Answer: A

Explanation:

For an organization looking to protect its data in the event of a natural disaster, the best disaster recovery practice would be off-site replication. By renting a colocation space in another part of the country, the company can maintain copies of their data and critical systems in a geographically separate location, ensuring they are not affected by the same disaster.
