BCI Certificate of the Business Continuity Institute (CBCI) Sample Questions (Q130-Q135):

NEW QUESTION # 130

In your role as a Business Continuity (BC) professional you have submitted your company's first gap analysis to top management for their review and approval. The response is a decision not to address some gaps even though you had recommended some new strategies and solutions. The best course of action is to:

- A. Recommend that the business pursues adjusted strategies and solutions that will partially close the identified gaps.
- B. Search for ways to lower the cost of carrying out the recommendations.
- C. Request a meeting to further discuss the importance of the recommendations.
- D. Plan to resubmit the strategies and solutions during the validation phase.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Within CBCI 7.0 (aligned to the BCI GPG 7.0 model), Solutions Design is where strategies are selected that best meet the organization's continuity requirements while remaining viable and proportionate. Crucially, the outcomes of analysis (BIA/RA and any resulting gap picture) are used to highlight "gaps for top management to address or accept." If top management decides not to fully close certain gaps, the BC professional should treat this as a governance decision (risk/impact acceptance) and then work constructively to refine options that improve resilience within the constraints set by management. Recommending adjusted strategies and solutions (option B) supports continual improvement without ignoring leadership's decision, and it keeps momentum by delivering partial risk reduction and capability uplift where feasible.

Option A may be appropriate if the decision appears uninformed, but it does not directly move the BCMS forward. Option C is only one possible input to adjustment (cost is not the only constraint). Option D misplaces the timing-validation tests what exists; it is not the stage to "re-pitch" unapproved solutions.

NEW QUESTION # 131

Which type of exercise is always carried out in the normal operational environment, alternative premises, or command centres and is designed to include everyone that could be involved in the response if the incident were real?

- A. Discussion-based
- B. Live
- C. Scenario
- D. Simulation

Answer: B

Explanation:

The CBCI 7.0 course describes live exercises as the most comprehensive type of Business Continuity exercise.

These are conducted in actual or alternate operational environments, including command centres, to simulate real incident conditions as closely as possible. Live exercises involve all personnel who would participate in an actual incident response, testing systems, processes, communication, and physical infrastructure. Their scope, realism, and inclusiveness help identify practical issues that other exercise types may miss. They require significant resources and planning but provide critical assurance of organizational preparedness under authentic conditions.

NEW QUESTION # 132

Which of the following would NOT be included in plans at all levels?

- A. Procedures for standing down the teams when the incident has been resolved
- B. Guidance for escalation
- C. Purpose, scope, assumptions and objectives of the plan
- D. Risk assessments for each possible scenario

Answer: D

Explanation:

Plans at different levels (strategic, tactical, operational) typically share common foundational elements: a clear purpose and scope, key assumptions, and objectives (C), so users understand when and how to apply the plan. They also usually include escalation guidance (A) so issues are raised to the right level quickly, and stand-down/transition procedures (D) so teams can safely return to normal operations and capture learning after resolution. These elements support coordinated response across the response structure.

However, risk assessments for each possible scenario (B) would not be included "at all levels" of plans. Risk assessment is a distinct analysis activity, and while plans may reference key threats or assumptions, they are generally not built as scenario-by-scenario risk assessment catalogues-especially not across every plan level. The BCI distinguishes BIA (impact over time) and Risk Assessment (risks to prioritised activities) as analysis techniques; plans then enable execution of the chosen solutions and response arrangements. So, risk assessments may inform plans, but they are not a universal content component at every plan level. Therefore B is correct.

NEW QUESTION # 133

When establishing a Business Continuity Management System (BCMS), which of the following activities should be carried out first?

- A. Establish high-level governance of the BCMS.
- B. Determine the scope of the BCMS.
- C. Develop a Business Continuity (BC) policy.
- D. Carry out a risk assessment.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Good practice is to agree what the BCMS covers before building the rest of the system. Determining the scope defines the boundaries (products/services, locations, functions, and interfaces) and ensures subsequent work-policy, objectives, roles, analysis, and solutions-targets the right parts of the organization. BCI's GPG 7.0 focus on PP1 includes developing both scope and policy, and wider BC guidance reinforces that it is important to agree the scope before progressing through later lifecycle stages such as analysis, design, implementation, and validation.

That makes option C the correct "first" activity. Option B (risk assessment) is part of the Analysis practice and should be performed once scope is set. Option D (policy) is foundational and should follow quickly, but it must align to the defined scope. Option A (governance) is also established early, yet governance design is driven by and must support the scoped BCMS; the scope decision is the logical starting point that anchors everything else.

NEW QUESTION # 134

Which of the following is NOT a critical requirement for an effective response structure?

- A. The number and type of teams required by the organization
- B. A plan to communicate with internal and external interested parties
- C. A plan to exercise the escalation and response
- D. Guidance on when regulators should be notified and be included in the response

Answer: D

Explanation:

While communication plans, team structure, and exercising escalation and response are essential for an effective Business Continuity response structure, specific guidance on regulator notification, although important, is not typically considered a core structural element. The CBCI 7.0 course outlines that regulatory communications are usually integrated within communication plans but are not a standalone requirement for response structures. The focus remains on establishing clear roles, responsibilities, and communication mechanisms.
