NEW QUESTION # 360

Which of the following is the MOST important criterion for complete closure of a security incident?

- A. Level of potential impact
- B. Reporting to senior management
- C. Root-cause analysis and lessons learned
- D. Isolation and protection of affected resources

Answer: C

Explanation:

Section: INCIDENT MANAGEMENT AND RESPONSE

NEW QUESTION # 361

Which of the following presents the GREATEST exposure to internal attack on a network?

- A. User passwords are not automatically expired
- B. All network traffic goes through a single switch
- C. User passwords are encoded but not encrypted
- D. All users reside on a single internal subnet

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

When passwords are sent over the internal network in an encoded format, they can easily be converted to clear text. All passwords should be encrypted to provide adequate security. Not automatically expiring user passwords does create an exposure, but not as great as having unencrypted passwords. Using a single switch or subnet does not present a significant exposure.

NEW QUESTION # 362

Which of the following is the BEST technical defense against unauthorized access to a corporate network through social engineering?

- A. Requiring multifactor authentication
- B. Enforcing complex password formats
- C. Enforcing frequent password changes
- D. Requiring challenge/response information

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 363

An organization is planning to open a new office in another country. Sensitive data will be routinely sent between two offices. What should be the information security manager's FIRST course of action?

- A. Apply the current corporate security policies to the new office.
- B. Encrypt the data for transfer to the head office based on security manager approval.
- C. Identify applicable regulatory requirements to establish security policies.
- D. Update privacy policies to include the other country's laws and regulations.

Answer: C

Explanation:
