NEW QUESTION # 23

An internal IT service provider does not have all the skills needed to create and deliver a new service but could develop them with enough time. There are many external service providers who can provide this service.

Which approach should the organization follow to decide if they should use the internal service provider or source the service externally?

- A. Start by reviewing organizational policies for sourcing services, then identify the most important criteria for selecting a service provider, and use a 'decision matrix' to compare service providers
- B. Focus on cost as the sole deciding factor
- C. Outsource immediately to save time
- D. Conduct an internal survey to determine staff preferences

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 24

How can the ' business analysis ' practice contribute to a loosely coupled system architecture?

- A. By translating user needs into requirements for each component
- B. By designing how the components of the solution interact
- C. By defining the minimal viable requirements for the product
- D. By aligning service levels with consumer expectations

Answer: A

Explanation:

A loosely coupled architecture depends on clarity about what each component needs to do, the boundaries between components, and how user needs are expressed as workable requirements. Business analysis contributes by translating stakeholder and user needs into requirements that can be allocated appropriately across components.

A sounds more like architecture or design responsibility. B relates more to service level management. D is helpful in product thinking, especially for MVP work, but it is broader and less specifically tied to component- level contribution.

C is best because business analysis helps ensure that requirements are correctly understood and decomposed in a way that supports modular, independent, and loosely coupled design.

NEW QUESTION # 25

Which is a type of digital transformation?

- A. Using robots to enable new ways of working

- B. Converting data from analogue form to digital form
- C. Using an information system to process data and present it to users
- D. Creating products and services that include digital technology

Answer: D

Explanation:

Digital transformation is about changing how an organization creates value using digital capabilities. Creating products and services that include digital technology is a strong example because it changes the offering itself and often the way value is co-created with customers.

A is digitization, not digital transformation. B may contribute to transformation, but on its own it is not as complete or direct. C describes the use of an information system, which may simply be routine automation or IT enablement. D most clearly reflects transformation of the organization's offerings through digital means.

So D is correct.
