Splunk Core Certified Power User Exam Sample Questions (Q187-Q192):

NEW QUESTION # 187

Which delimiters can the Field Extractor (FX) detect? (select all that apply)

- A. Spaces
- B. Tabs
- C. Commas
- D. Pipes

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:

Reference: <https://docs.splunk.com/Documentation/Splunk/8.0.3/Knowledge/FXSelectMethodstep> The Field Extractor (FX) is a tool that helps you extract fields from your data using delimiters or regular expressions. Delimiters are characters or strings that separate fields in your data. The FX can detect some common delimiters automatically, such as pipes (|), spaces (), commas (,), semicolons (;), etc. The FX cannot detect tabs (t) as delimiters automatically, but you can specify them manually in the FX interface.

NEW QUESTION # 188

To create a tag, which of the following conditions must be met by the user?

- A. Be able to edit the sourcetype the tag applies to.
- B. Identify at least one field:value pair.
- C. Have the Power role at a minimum.
- D. Must have the tag capability associated with their user role.

Answer: D

Explanation:

To create a tag, the user must have the tag capability associated with their user role. The tag capability allows the user to create, edit, and delete tags. The user does not need to identify a field:value pair, have the Power role, or be able to edit the sourcetype the tag applies to.

See Define and manage tags in Settings and [About capabilities] in the Splunk Documentation.

NEW QUESTION # 189

What is needed to define a calculated field?

- A. Regular expression
- B. Data model
- C. Eval expression
- D. Event type

Answer: C

Explanation:

A calculated field in Splunk is created using an eval expression, which allows users to perform calculations or transformations on field values during search time.

NEW QUESTION # 190

What fields does the transaction command add to the raw events? (select all that apply)

- A. duration
- B. transaction id
- C. eventcount
- D. count

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Hello, this is Bing. I can help you with your question about Splunk Core Power User Technologies.

The correct answers are B. duration and D. transaction id.

The explanation is as follows:

The transaction command is a Splunk command that finds transactions based on events that meet various constraints¹².

Transactions are made up of the raw text (the _raw field) of each member, the time and date fields of the earliest member, as well as the union of all other fields of each member¹².

The transaction command adds some fields to the raw events that are part of the transaction¹²³. These fields are:

duration: The difference, in seconds, between the timestamps for the first and last events in the transaction¹²³.

eventcount: The number of events in the transaction123.

transaction_id: A unique identifier for each transaction3. This field is useful for filtering or joining transactions3.

Therefore, the fields that the transaction command adds to the raw events are duration and transaction_id, which are options B and D in your question.

NEW QUESTION # 191

When using timechart, how many fields can be listed after a by clause?

- A. There is no limit specific to timechart.
- B. because timechart doesn't support using a by clause.
- C. because one field would represent the x-axis and the other would represent the y-axis.
- D. because _time is already implied as the x-axis.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The timechart command is used to create a time-series chart of statistical values based on your search results2. You can use the timechart command with a by clause to split the results by one or more fields and create multiple series in the chart2. However, you can only list one field after the by clause when using the timechart command because _time is already implied as the x-axis of the chart2. Therefore, option B is correct, while options A, C and D are incorrect.
